A student at Fort Hunt plays two different but equally important roles. First, he plays the role of an individual, that of himself. Secondly, he enjoys the role as a member of the body at Fort Hunt, just one of many joined together as a group.

At the Fort one has the freedom to be that individual as well as an obligation to be a member of the body. In short, individuals acting as one, joined together as a group, make Fort Hunt what it is.

Each person is like a splash of color in a large painting, seemingly unimportant but necessary to complete the picture

When I was in high school I was a member of the Purple Haze Band. I was the lead singer and I was the only one who could play guitar.

I was also a member of the Fort Hunt High School Band. I was the lead singer and I was the only one who could play guitar.

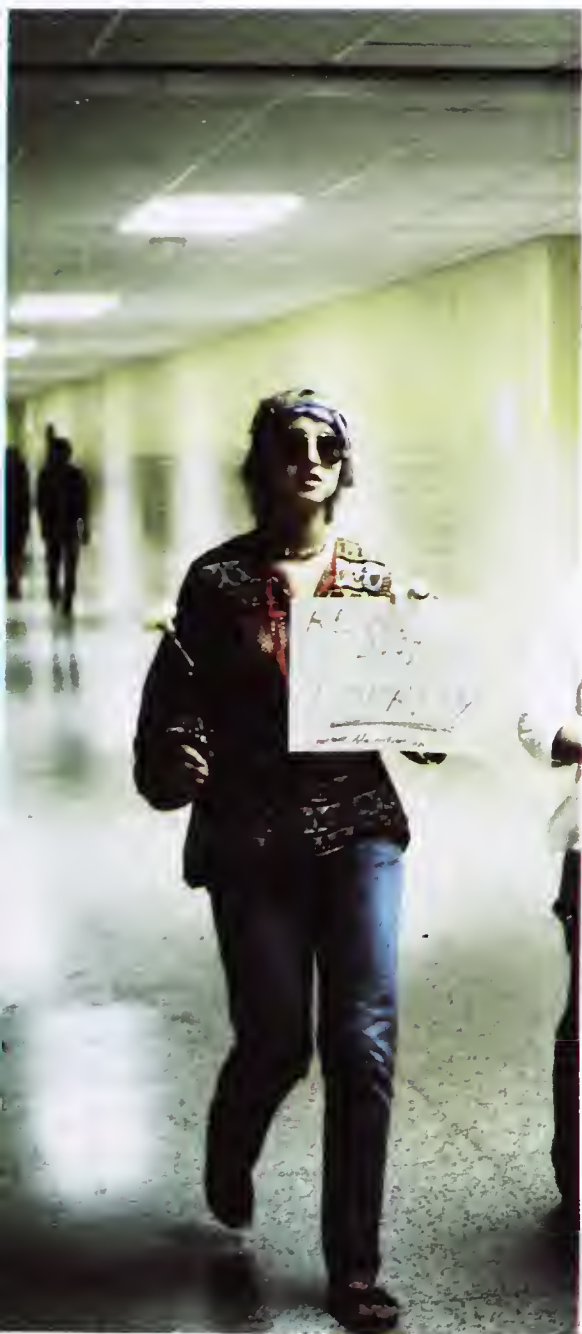

I was also a member of the Fort Hunt High School Band. I was the lead singer and I was the only one who could play guitar.

Fort Hunt is made up of a diversified group of individuals. Since no two of us are exactly alike, that is a plus for all of us. Over the years we have come to appreciate the individuality of each person we know. As we have gone through high school we have come to realize that each of us is significant as a single identity, and that it is important for each to be himself.

"I guess I am sort of 'weird' sometimes," suggests Tim Evans (Class of '81). "At times I guess I don't act the way some people say you're supposed to, but it's valuable to me to be myself and to be different from everyone else."

In a society where the individual is losing importance it is good to know that at Fort Hunt each person can play an important role and thus gain some recognition. Each of us has a special quality that can be contributed. "When I make a good play out on the football field," says Danny Bean (Class of '83) "it makes me feel like I've made an impact on the team. It feels good to make a contribution as an individual that has an effect on others."

High school is a major point of growth in a person's life. Although much of this growth happens with the help of friends, the majority takes place within the individual alone. "Sometimes you face a problem that nobody can help you with," says Kim Andrews (Class of '82). "You just have to trust your own instincts and fight it out alone, by yourself."

High school's purpose is to create an independent being who can function later in life. Because one must be able to make decisions for himself without the help of others, Fort Hunt prepares a student to accept the responsibilities and challenges to act on his own.

As a student progresses through high school, he begins to sense a certain change that seems to be taking place. All those different individuals whom he knows seem to somehow start to come together and begin to function more as a group rather than separate identities. "We" and "they" begin to become more commonly heard than "I" or "she". Each individual begins to take his place in a certain group that he seems to belong to.

Titles never heard before such as "freak", "jock", "grit", and "egg head" start to pop up and that individual soon becomes identified by the group he is a part of, rather than his own personage. "Everybody gets classified at this school," says Alan Davis, class of '81. "Supposedly you're either a jock, a freak, a book worm, or a band member. The first thing you hear when learning about a new person is the group he belongs to." Some feel that this separation of people into groups is absurd and they might be right.

In a state of total frustration, Jeff Kindred and Bill Fredejohn vent their anxieties.

Taking the field against Edison, the Federal football team prepares for the second half.

Fort Hunt has such a variety of interests though these divisions of people into cliques seems inevitable. It is when these sub-groups come together as one large group that Fort Hunt as a body begins to take shape. "As I progressed through school I saw how all these groups started to form," says Jim Hasle, Class of '81. "I was a jock. I guess I'd look at those guys in the smoking lounge and make fun of their long hair or their clothes, but as I got older I discovered it really didn't matter what group a person belonged to. What matters more was the person he really was."

"Unity" is when a football player and a freak get their hypes up Mustangs together to go somewhere and drag race some guys from Edison. "Togetherness" is when people come together for a certain cause regardless of their differences. "I play field hockey," says junior Judy Herbertson. "It's not because I want to see how well I as an individual can do, but to be a part of the team and have a good time with a great group of people." That in essence is representative of what Fort Hunt as a body is all about.

As she usually does, Alma Martin livens up the Homecoming pep rally.

STUDENT LIFE

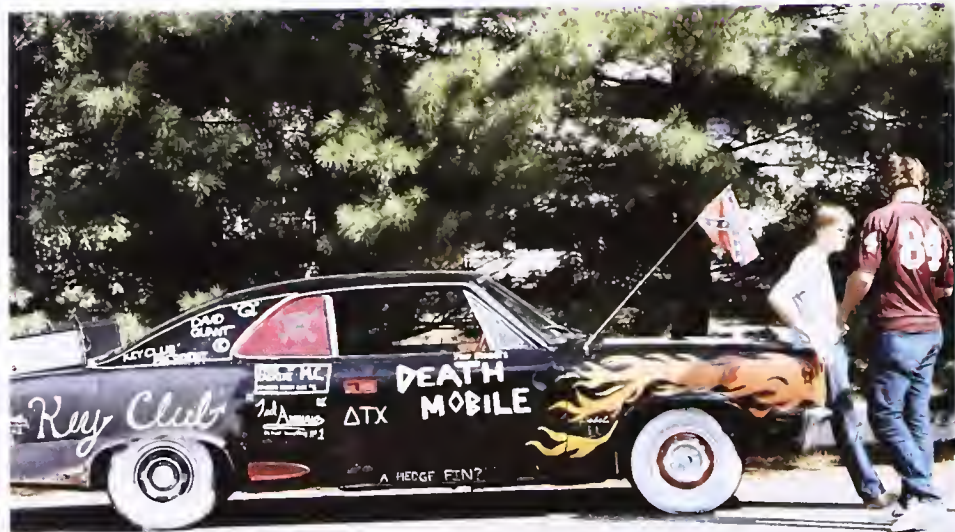

The last bell at 2:20 PM on Friday often signalled the beginning of pressure free time for students. While week ends and holidays were mainly spent in vacation, many free hours were spent on SAT's, club projects, weekend jobs and cramming for exams.

When the homework was completed and jobs were done, students found time for a variety of activities to keep them occupied. This extra time was important to all. "I couldn't have survived without parties and stuff like that," comments Greg Early (class of '81). "You've got to have activities like these to take your mind off school and feel relaxed."

Many people experienced some of their most unforgettable moments during these special times. "I'll never forget the time we were parked on the parkway at 2:00 AM and a cop knocked on the window telling us to go home," recalls Ricky Walker (class of '83). "Experiencing such moments were an essential part of the student's life and a basic part of the school year."

Bright lights, crazy outfits, Grauman's Chinese Theatre, and stars — it's Hollywood. Every student got involved whether it was decorating the halls, building the floats, participating in Spirit Week, cheering at the pep rally, or playing on the football field — everybody contributed.

Throughout the week students took advantage of a variety of activities in which they showed their individuality. Many costumes appeared on the various special days and together the students assembled to fuel the annual bonfire as well as themselves.

The pep rally was hot—everyone was ready to crush. "The last day was fun, everyone was screaming and clapping," says Karen Holland. The cheerleaders and drill team added to the excitement of the rally. Students left the school chanting, only to find that it was pouring outside. The game was delayed until the next day. "Even though the school had a let down because of rain, the next day was sunny and everyone could taste victory," says Debbie Lovely. She was right, the Federals defeated the Edison Eagles 7 to 0 that day and everyone left with high spirits.

IMPROVEMENTS?

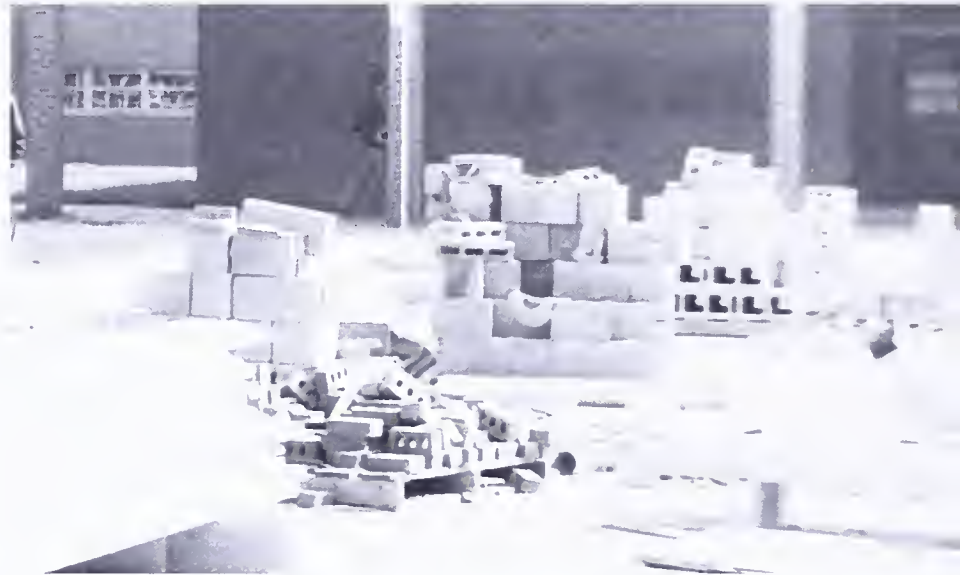

Have you ever walked through a hallway this year without seeing a construction worker? Did you go to a classroom only to find out that it was vacant, or workers were in the room, or that there was no room at all? This happened to many students during the school year.

Because of the fire, taxpayers put their money together to try to rebuild the school. The insurance agency would not allow the school to renovate and rebuild at the same time. Because parts of the school had to be rebuilt, workers had to tear down what had been done to renovate. The man in charge of the construction was Mr. Mike Wagner, the School Board representative. He said, "Everyone has been real nice, it's been a pleasure." "I've rebuilt this school once before, right after the fire, and I can do it again," he claims smiling.

About 20 men were involved with the construction, some in plumbing, and others in electrical. Mr. Wagner feels the work will be completed by May 1. He finishes by saying, "The students were excellent and a joy to be around."

Students and teachers didn't complain much but some students were upset by it all. "The art room is a mess; we have supplies but we can't use them because they're piled up in another room," said Ms. Williams. The construction workers put some of their equipment in the rooms and students are either crowded or displaced. There is so much noise and so many boxes that it is very hard to concentrate. Some classes have to be switched to other rooms, like art, shop, computer science, the Fortress and the Frontline had to do all their printing at home.

Even though we were forced to change from one room to another, we somehow made it through the school year. Next year the students look forward to a finished school which they can enjoy, but the memories of clanging, nailing, boxes, and ladders lying around will no doubt remain.

The continuous mass of wood and cinder blocks has become an expected sight for students who pass by frequently.

Filling the hole they just dug up, the construction workers work over the scene.

In the back parking lot by the smoking lounge, all the trailers for the workers clutter the area

In a throne of cinder blocks that appeared one day, Sara Cooper takes refuge. An equal number of blocks disappeared from a construction site the same day the throne appeared.

All of this year's art supplies are piled up in one room. Here Mrs. Williams and Shaun and David Walker rummage through looking for a typewriter.

"PARTIES." "INDEED?" "NATURALLY!"

We're supposed to do a piece on parties without the usual description of Friday afternoon at 2:20, so here we go. There's not much natural excitement in suburban Virginia, even on the weekends. So we make our own!

On the smaller scale, a trip to your local dealer or the neighborhood 7-Eleven or both and a place to plant yourself are the only requirements. But full-scale war begins when the guy next door tells you his parents have gone to Las Vegas till next Tuesday. Now, if his best friend got a paycheck this week, they might buy a keg or a few bottles of Everclear, which naturally mixes with Mommy's Hi-C fruit punch. Now you need tunes so the last maneuver is hooking up the wailing stereo our friend Mike got for Christmas. If we get lucky, somebody will find us a band.

The fever begins. The main attraction for this Friday is under way, Open Party at so-and-so's! You could say that there are three kinds of parties around here: 1-keggers, 2-keggers, and 3-keggers, but that's not exactly true. We try to have a few cocktail parties every year, and indoor skiers are frequently found near the slopes. We have our share of day and night trippers, and the connoisseurs of natural herbs will eventually emerge from some smoky attic room.

However they manage it, everybody parties!

Thanks to Mr. Cabelus we get to party before, during, and after school, as well as at Alpha, Prom, and, at last but not least, Graduation!

"So what's going on this weekend?"

"Parties."

"Indeed?"

"Naturally!"

Remember when you thought anybody with a car was sophisticated? When you couldn't wait to have that official plastic card, not realizing that once you had it, you wouldn't be able to talk your parents into using the family vehicle? Seems like a long time ago; driving cars is a Federal hobby, status symbol, and a means of escaping the Fort at lunch, despite George's valiant efforts to contain us.

Many own their own wheels, buying older models to add a touch of personal work to Jeff Kindred's '67 Ford, Bill Fredenburg's Galaxy 500 XL, John Harms' truck, Roger Vasilas' MG, and David Guthrie's Ilfordmobile are familiar sights

The Mustang's classic lines are ever-popular Bryan Davenport, John Howerton, Donnie Fawley, Jim Moore, Jay Atkinson, Peter Braun, and Thomas Cornbrooks own some of the famous, or, as the case may be, infamous 'strangs around Fort Hunt.

Others are more gas-conscious, preferring smaller economy cars. Kim Barton's Saporo, Andrew Rutledge's Horizon, Mr. Davies' Pinto and Andy Walker's Vega number among the many. Volkswagens, owned by Jimbo Bailey, Nikki Kyriacou, Eric Lundberg, Beth Brennan, and Paul Ryder, are still popular.

Speaking of Paul, what was that red flash? Paul's truck, of course. Or maybe it was Brian Davenport's brown Ford. Or maybe even Alan Fontanella's. What better than a pickup for icy roads?

Due to a lack of funds or initiative, many Feds are seen driving Daddy's car. Some can't wait to get their hands on it, like Bill Fredenburg, whose father owns a turbo-charged Mustang. Others enjoy the pleasure of the vehicle without the pain of maintenance. Of course, everybody drives Daddy's car once in a while, but some students take his generosity a bit too far.

Although cars are very popular, Rick Starr, Jim Chauncey, Russell Gray, and David McKnight still prefer the free spirit of a motorcycle. Says Jim, "I like riding a bike because I'm more aware of what's going on around me."

What would happen if all the cars disappeared? Mass hysteria!!! How would we get to Mac's for lunch? How would we get to work? How would we find the parties? Most important of all: how would we go cruising?

But not everybody plays guitar. There are keyboardists, bassists, drumists, dulcimer players, and many others. Some people play unusual instruments such as the electric cello "Electric what?" people ask. "Electric cello" replies Anne Jackley "Its interesting "

Fort Hunters use music as a way of getting our their aggressions, wasting time, and passibly to make it some day in the rock world. Masrly it's for enjoyment, but who knows Maybe some day a signature in your year book will be worth something

It's a cool October night and the crowds gather at the football field. The tension that has been building all week seems to electrify the air. As the female members of the Powder Puff teams warm up, the male cheerleaders and drill team make their entrance, complete with skirts, and even a bathing suit. The seniors make repeated raids on the juniors' balloons, much to the amusement of the crowd.

Some of the junior coaches, Ronnie Kaye, Al Monroe, John Howay, Jeff Richards, Elliot Smith, and Lonnie Lambert, frantically try to organize their team. Their boisterous spirits, however, seem to defy any and all attempts at organization. Senior coaches, Chris Ryan, Bob Bastedo, Wayne Jackson, and John Morrissey seem to be having a bit more luck. Perhaps their suit-clad countenances help.

At last the game begins, or should we say explodes! The cheerleaders go wild with "embarrassing" and "obscene" chants as all !!!/?#!! breaks loose on the field. Rowdiness erupts into semi-violence with pushing, screaming, and punching between the two teams.

The Referee, Mr. Crenetti, assisted by Brad Sheehan, Jay Pitts, and Bob Perry, break up the game for "unnecessary roughness" with the score at 10-0 in favor of the Seniors. Afterwards the two teams met at Shakey's to compare bruises.

As winter rolls around, Fort Hunters' minds turn to ski trips. It's not just skiing because the night time activities are essential to the success of the trip. Whether it's with the school's unauthorized ski club or personal trips with friends, the daily fare includes the early morning trip to the resort, skiing all day, and a night time of partying.

Areas most used by skiers are Roundtop, Liberry, Wisp, and Seven Springs. At these places various busts and broken furniture add excitement. In fact, Seven Springs has now ordered no more appearances by Fort Hunt after over $1600 damage. This and other previous actions have made the CRWS Ski Club, alias Fort Hunt, notorious at area resorts.

For smaller trips a cheap hotel serves most purposes. Proximity to the resort, no hassle from authorities, and low prices make for places like Dillsburg's Range Motel a frequent stop.

When a Fort Hunter says he's going on a ski trip, don't expect him to be going for the skiing only.

SENIOR Slump

The first semester is over, college applications are completed. So where are the seniors? They haven't graduated yet, have they? No, they have only disappeared behind a screen of apathy, plummeting grades, and sleeping through the few classes they make. The disease spreads as the final countdown begins its toll.

Senior teachers and administrators find it almost impossible to control the slumping seniors. "Who cares about homework?" is an oft-repeated phrase. "I have enough credits to graduate, and I've already been accepted."

The affliction flares as the days grow warmer. The sun shines through the blue sky, inviting dreamers and pragmatists alike. To see a senior attending class regularly during spring is indeed a rarity. "Senior Slump" is an annual malady of epidemic proportions.

New president

We made history this year. Ronald Reagan was elected President of the United States. He was inaugurated on January 20. Those of us at Fort Hunt remember this because we got the day off. It's difficult to write a piece like this without injecting your political bias, but everyone will agree that it was a regal display!

The Parade and the swearing-in, the inaugural gala held at the Capital Center, and some magnificent fireworks left trails on the city sky.

Beyond the festivities, this year's inauguration signifies something more serious in the political world. Living so close to Washington, we tend to get a bit tired of national news. However, we are living in a politically influenced world and the election of Ronald Reagan will undoubtedly have some profound effect on the state of world policy.

Inflation woes

When penny bubble gum costs three cents, you know something's wrong. The cost of living has been on the rise for a long time, but now it seems to be at its worst.

Inflation affects everybody in some way. When was the last time you bought something, anything, and weren't surprised by its cost? Over the last decade the price of gas has gone up an unbelievable amount. Most of us remember when a gallon of petrol cost only 65¢! Now it looks as if it could be $2.00 by the end of the year.

Students everywhere are tightening their belts, especially Ft. Hunt students. We live in an area where the cost of living index is at its highest. Many work (when they aren't in school) to make extra money. Between the cost of books, lunch, pens, pencils, and notepads, the average student may soon need a federal loan just to finish high school.

End of an era

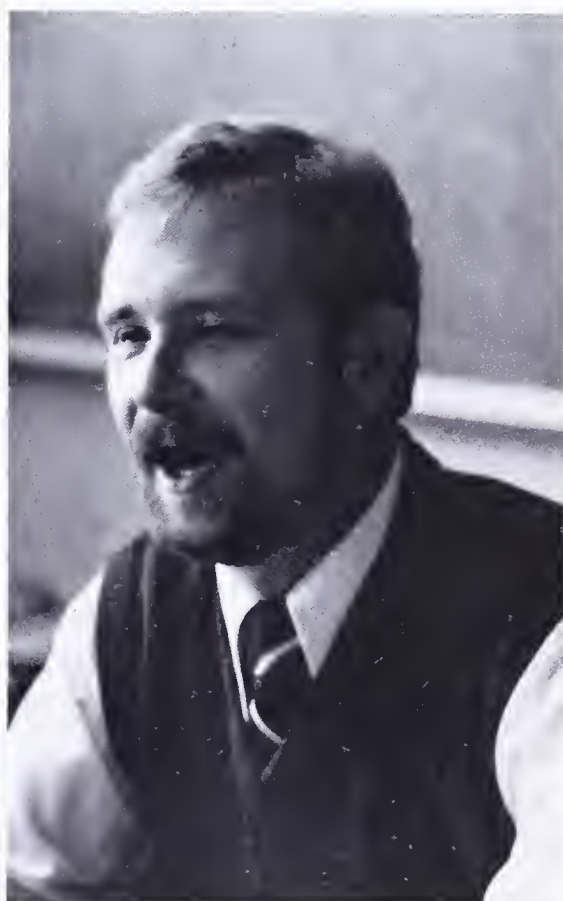

On September 25, 1980, John "Bonzo" Bonham, drummer of Led Zeppelin, died in the Windsor Mansion of former band member Jimmy Page. They had been drinking rather heavily the night before, and his death was not discovered until 1:45 pm when John Paul Jones, another former band member, went to check on him.

A little more than two months later, the rock world was again shaken with tragedy: the death of John Lennon. On December 8th he was shot outside his New York home. Our generation and the one preceding were hit alike, and the cry for stronger handgun control laws was heard.

It is sad that it takes the death of someone famous to make people listen. Last year over ten thousand people were killed, many of the estimated fifty million handguns in this country could have done it.

The deaths of John Bonham and John Lennon touched every one of us. Silent vigils were held as spirits dropped. Many of us took hope, however, in Lennon's words: All we are saying/Is give peace a chance.

Dramatic change

Last Halloween marked the end of fifteen years of teaching at Fort Hunt for Mr. Edward Gassek. From his first production of "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" to his crowning achievement, last year's production of "Godspell," Gassek built up a strong force in the drama department.

He denied accusations that delays in rebuilding the auditorium influenced his decision, but admits "that was the capper." It seems that teaching was just "no fun anymore," and he went into partnership with Tom Rich, a former Ft. Hunt geography teacher.

So the spotlight turned to Mr. Jim Dorson, a young native of Kentucky, who assumed the double duties of drama coach and English teacher. He admits that the situation "isn't an easy one, not for me or the students."

Tibia trouble

Mr. John Shortridge, affectionately known as "Shorry," is back, returning with only the help of a pair of crutches. It seems as if he will need a bit more than that. His students, subjected to three months of substitutes, had a painful debate over second quarter grades.

His accident occurred on October 24, in the safety of his own home. Everybody has fallen down the stairs before, although perhaps not with such extreme consequences. Even Mr. Craddock will agree that some stairs are out to get you, and these certainly were out for blood.

Shorry fractured his Tibia (that's in his knee) in three places, and must wear a plate to hold it together. "It's right here, you can feel it, it's T-shaped," he says as he points to the site of the operation. He also had to wear a thigh-high cast for a month.

Students and faculty alike welcome Shorry back and wish him luck putting his classes back together.

Welcome Home!

For 444 long days fifty-two Americans were held hostage in Iran as a result of civil unrest in that country. Secret negotiations went on while the American people tied yellow ribbons and waited as the count of days steadily climbed.

Suddenly things started happening—the hostages would be released on Monday! However, due to "complications," they did not leave until Tuesday, January 20, after Ronald Reagan was inaugurated as President of the United States. Celebrations were held, and yellow ribbons lined the G.W. Parkway.

Fort Hunt High School welcomes back area residents: Thomas L. Ahern, Jr., Clair Cortland Barnes, Alan Bruce Golacinski, Bruce W. German, John E. Graves, Kathryn L. Koob, L. Bruce Laingen, Gary E. Rock 'n Roll will never die

This year has been one for music and the pendulum has swung back and forth from Rock and Roll, to Disco, to Punk, to Nu Wave and back to Rock. There are traces of all of these types of music everywhere and there are those who will continue to enjoy the "aur" kinds of music.

For dancing, Disco and Nu Wave are best; they both have the beat that makes you move. You can see people boppin to groups like AC/DC, the B 52's, Devo, and the Rolling Stones. This New Wave of Nu Wave has also triggered a new rebellious attitude to dress.

Underlying all these is good old fashioned Rock and Roll. Groups like the Doors, Led Zeppelin, The Who, Pink Floyd, and Jimi Hendrix will always be around in their music.

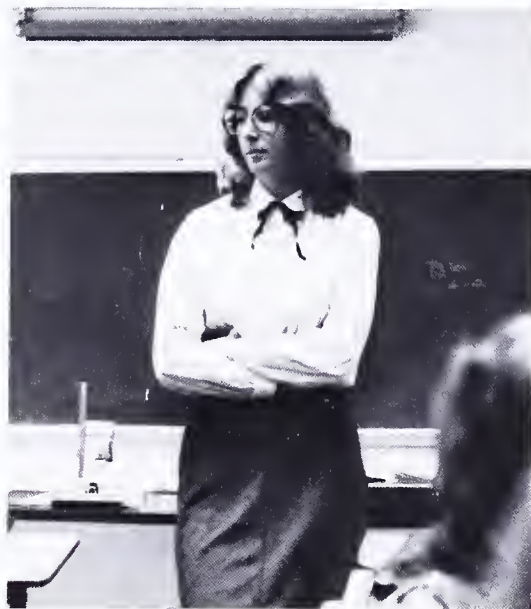

What would the world be like without music? How could you retain your sanity?

Up and coming

This year marked the beginning of a revolution, the preppy revolution. People everywhere switched to a more conservative way of dressing. Such clothing terms as: top siders, Izod Lacaste shirts; sax etc; ribbons in the hair; long, full skirts, baggy pants and the combination of hot pink and bright green, are common.

Not all are preppy; there are jeans which are always cool and one can't very well do without some form of tennis shoes.

Hair styles are heading back to the short, neat look, or in millions of braids, possibly with beads incorporated. Hair is still an individual thing, though, and everyone wears it the way he likes for the most part.

War games begin

The draft has always seemed one of those mythical things like war games and tin soldiers. We have been raised in peacetime and we can barely touch the idea of war.

Recently the U.S. Government called for the draft registration to begin. Reinstatement of the draft seems inevitable and war always seems to follow. The guys we have spent high school with are now being forced into a slow and staggering realization. "What if there actually is a war . . ." "You will go! . . . and that is just life I guess . . . but damn . . ."

Sports shorts

Beginning in the fall, football fever sets in. For our own Redskins it was a rough year, but with the firing of Coach Pardee some fans think they will again dominate the football world. Fort Hunt's varsity clinched the Gunston District title over Mr. Vernon.

In college play the Georgia Bulldogs grabbed the #1 spot while in professional football the Oakland Raiders won the superbowl. In tennis, the Wimbledon highlight of fans, was won by Bjorn Borg who seems to never let down his fans, winning his fifth consecutive title. The Phillies won the World Series in 6 games.

With the falling snow and the winter season came much excitement. In hockey the Caps suffered many injuries but made the playoffs. Basketball kept all fans on their toes as the playoffs continued. Local teams like Maryland and the Washington Bullets stumbled as UVA crushed other college teams. Our own Federal team has improved its game tremendously this season.

With spring and soccer the New York Cosmos won again. Both Federal girls and boys teams continued to show their strength throughout the season. Softball, baseball and golf again flourished as the days grew warmer.

Whatever the endeavor, sports are alive and well.

KIDS IN THE COMMUNITY

During the course of an average day, the times a community member runs into a Fort Hunt student are too numerous to be counted on your normal five-fingered hand. Although students in service committees accomplish much, they can't do it all. So in step some very special people who use those precious weekend hours to help out their neighbors in many ways.

Some get paid, but for most it is a voluntary task that consists of long hours and hard work. Nursing homes and churches receive a lot of their effort, but citizens in need of some extra help can probably find it.

Helping the community makes the students feel proud of what they accomplish, and doing it is fun. People like Jimbo Bailey and Danny Evans enjoy working at the Mount Vernon Hospital.

Students also work at many of the local shops and facilities. Because we are willing to work, we enjoy a better community.

Legs, long hidden in long underwear, show themselves boldly in slit skirts and dangerously high heels. Spirits roke on the chorocer of a shaken 7-UP as teachers try vainly to reach their students' minds from out of the window and into their books.

YOU'RE SO VAIN!

"You're so Vain" says the old tune, perhaps this should become Fr. Hunt's new theme song. We do not fade unnoticed into the background—we want and will be seen. If there is a camera in sight—watch out!!!

"Take a picture of me! Take a picture of me!" is screamed by everyone in the instantly-appearing crowd. Our students like to be known, heard, and seen. Fr. Hunt's macho men jocks are quick to leap into the scene, either to rescue (hopefully) or to help out(!?) a maiden in distress.

Ever look around a classroom when there's 2 or 3 minutes left in the period? As if on signal, combs and brushes are whipped out by most girls and some guys to prepare for between-class socializing. Some have even gone so far as to install mirrors and the like in their lockers!

Students at Fr. Hunt are definitely vain, but just try to get them to admit it. Chances are the answer will: "Who, me?"

Reflections Of

Reflections of Good, Reflections of Bad,
Four years we fought, we leave happy and sad,
Our first year at Fort Hunt, Dr. Manning's as well,
A perfect principal so far as we could tell
Sophomores we then soon became,
With new freshmen to completely shome,
30th of December nineteen hundred and seventy eight,
A date we will always remember and hate,
Our school our home, that night was burned down,
Some wanted it closed, but firm we held our ground
Mr. Griverson and then Mr. Vernon we went,
Sports our broken yet severely bent,
By our junior year to our home we came back,
With a respect for our school that before we did lack Reconstruction and readjustment moved swift,
Then we were told of a principal shift,
We said good-bye to a three year friend,
And were coupled with a definite conservative trend
Mr. Cappel, the visible dictator, laid down the law,
And sent his officers to stop any defiance they saw,
At first we were appalled at such drastic change,
But our graduation we suffered through the pains
We made it through even if we had to cheat,
At the end of July to the juniors we gave our seat,
We earned our way say goodbye as a whole,
And wave you Fort Hunt in pursuit of our goal

ACADEMICS

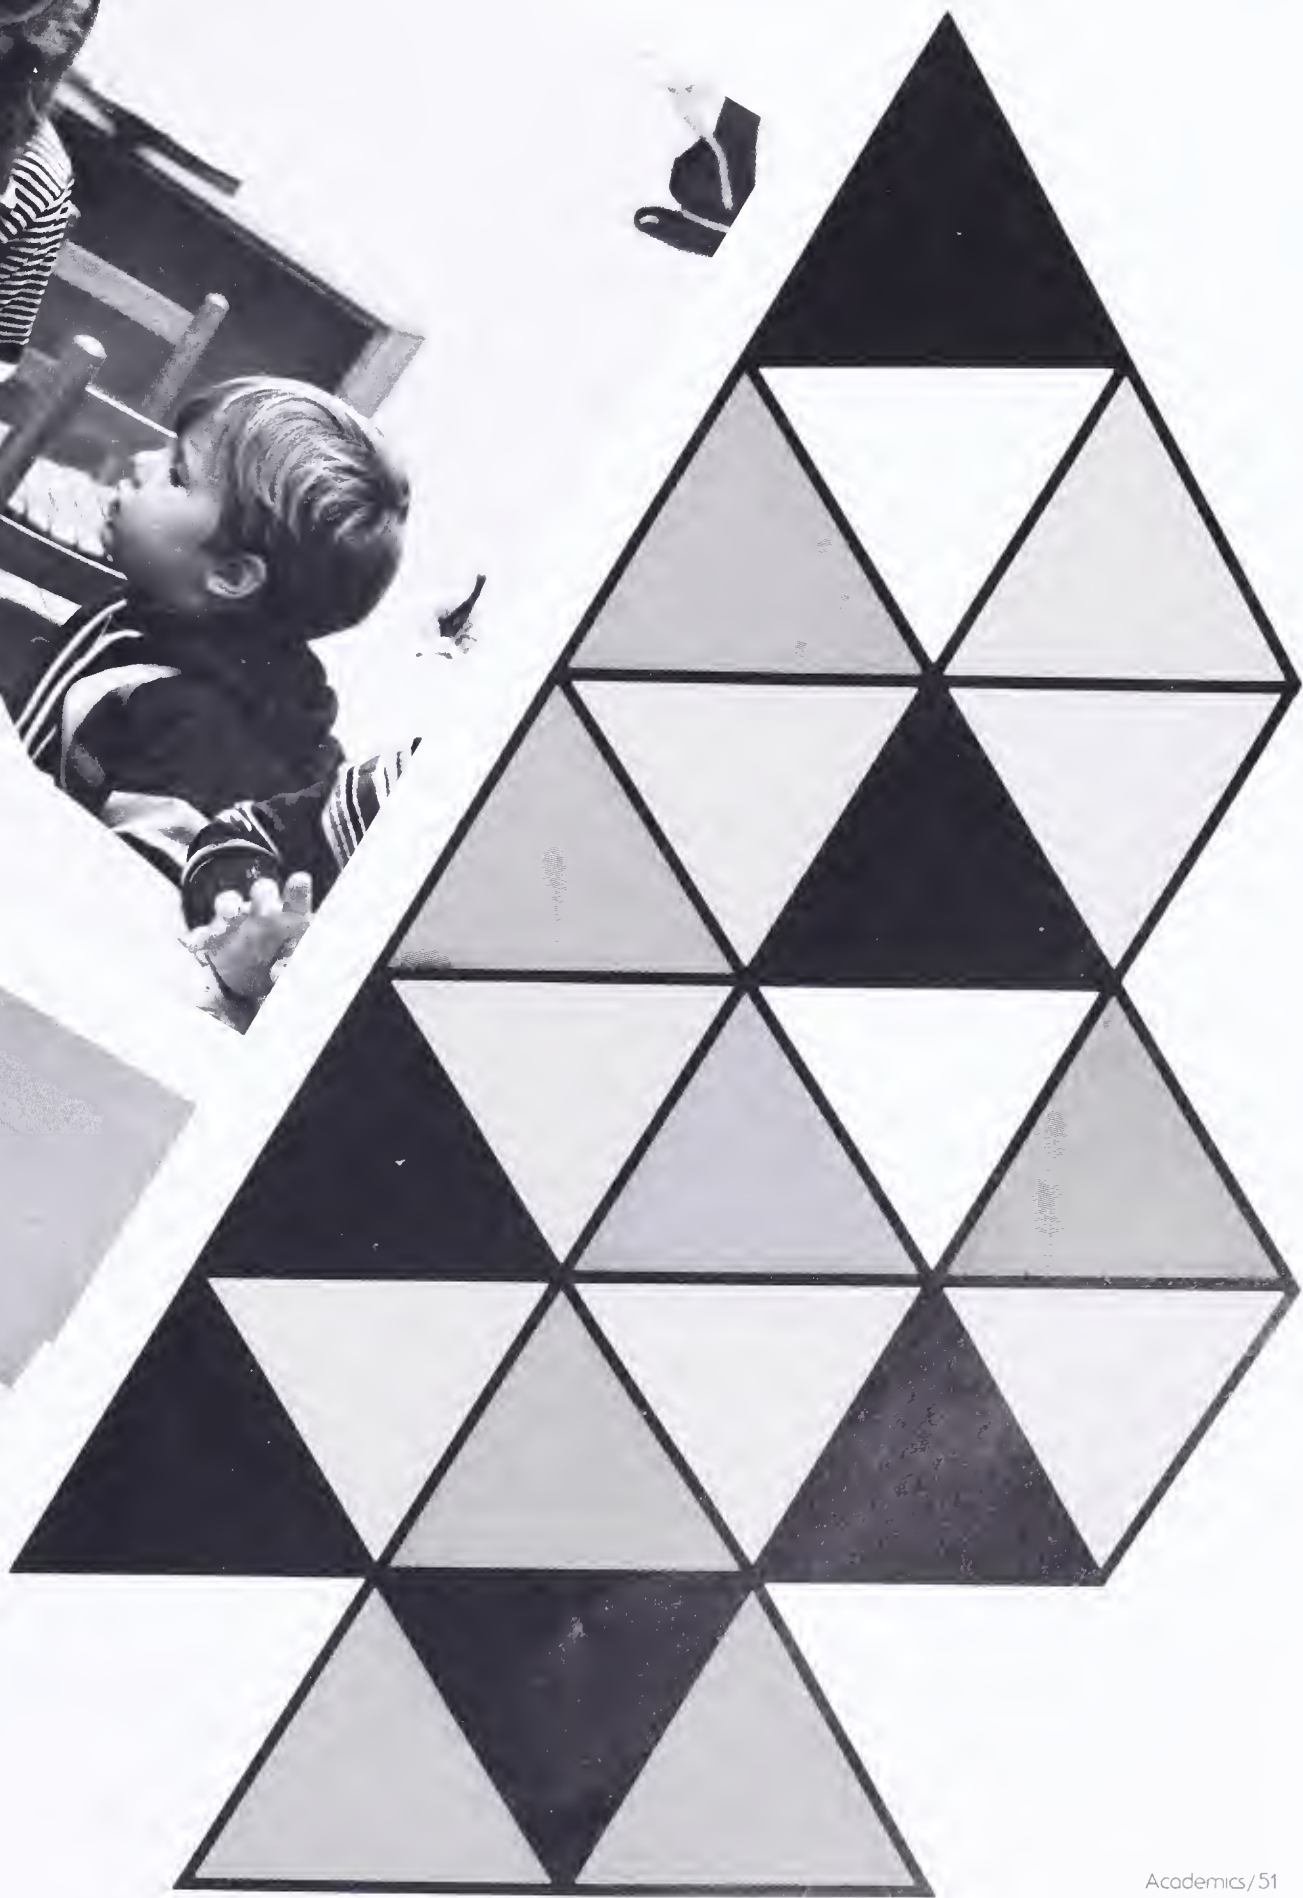

In our memories, academics will probably be the most underrated part of our high school years. In academics, the individual was in dear profile. It was here the student had to extend his greatest effort as a single person.

"Looking back, I can't believe the amount of work I did," exclaims John Grizzard! "It makes me feel good to know that I had the will-power to stick with it."

The strength of Fort Hunt's individuals was apparent as the school held one of the best academic records in the county.

"These kids want to go places," says guidance counselor Emily Baker. "You can see it in their will to succeed. This is what I think sets Fort Hunt apart from other schools."

Top guns pull all stops to enforce rules

With the arrival of the 1980-81 school year came a changing of the guard. An almost all brand new administrative staff (save two oldies but goodies) invaded the Fort with full force and shooting from the belt. An unprepared student body witnessed a difference in style and temperament from the top down.

New principal Thomas Cabelus came on board following nine years at academic rival Langley, exchanging positions with our former principal James Manning. Because of a back injury, Cabelus was not too visible at the beginning and some students still claim never to have seen him in person.

Although not always visible, Mr. Cabelus' policies were heard and enforced by two assistants in the persons of Gene Skinner, assistant principal, and Jack Robertson, administrative aid. These two gentlemen became the disciplinarians around the Fort and had all areas under control, making hall travel difficult at best.

If one managed to slip past Skinner or Robertson, chances are administrative assistant George Hamel would nab him in the parking lot. Hamel supervised transportation and issued parking tickets to violators. He also did some coaching and advising for the school newspaper.

As the year finally wound down, the student body had adjusted itself to the new administration and it could, after all, live with change.

Principal on apple. Diane [Name] [Name] good side of Mr. Cabelus.

Nottingham obtains [Name] [Name] from Mr. Hamel.

Diligently patrolling the parking lot, Mr. Skinner holds against the wind.

"Again, that's four times in five minutes," exclaims Bobby Hummer accompanied by Jessica Mulligan during a bust by Mr. Robertson.

While discussing faculty problems with Mr. Johnson and Mrs. Laveless, Mr. Cobelus finds time to flash the camera a smile.

Special programs for special people

The Federal Arsenal offers a wide range of courses designed for students whose abilities and skills range from highly motivated and accelerated to those students who are in need of remediation or alternative offerings in a curriculum.

Advanced placement classes are given in English and physics, and a senior may earn up to five hours of college credit in his freshman year for scoring well on the final exam. Honors classes are included in government and English to enrich those students who have demonstrated proficiency in each area.

Developmental reading stresses individualized instruction to increase speed and comprehension, and other specialized classes assist students with various levels of reading difficulties. The learning disability resources are available to those Fort Hunters with academic problems and in need of very special help.

Programs in distributive education and cooperative office education offer Federals opportunities to reinforce classroom instruction with on-the-job training. Courses in journalism and photojournalism give practical and rewarding experiences to students who have their work published and circulated among their peers.

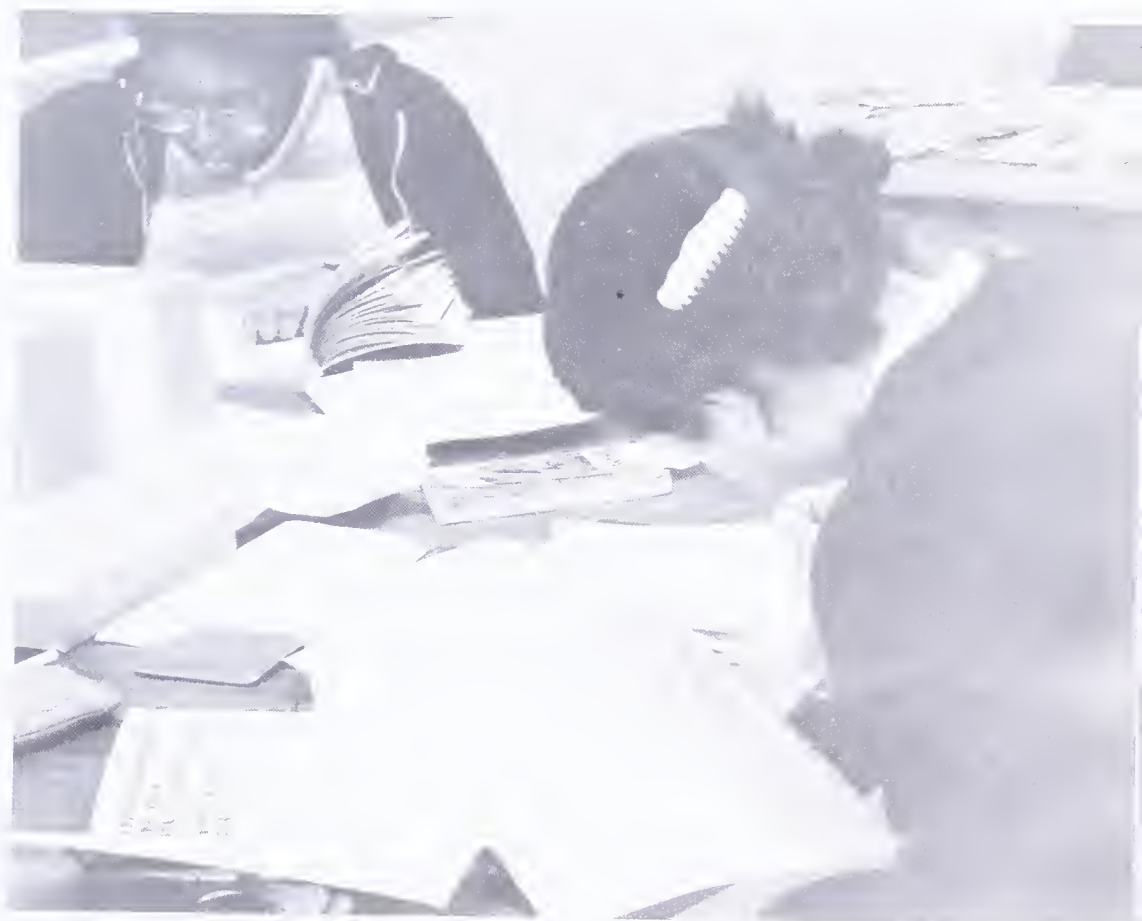

While reading a short story, Paul Baker uses headphones to listen to the correct phonetic soundings of the words.

Graveton students smile during Mr. Levy's AP Government lecture before school as Fort Hunt's John Schroer struggles to stay awake.

While in Honors English, Paul Kucera and David Eggleston laugh at the thought of having to comprehend their reading material

While buried in their books, Angela Hardy and Kathy Bell work diligently on their assignments

Struggling to stay awake, Amanda Raahr and Pam Suggs take notes on the teacher's lecture

Fine arts let students create

For the creative Fort Hunter the possibilities in the Fine Arts curriculum are vast. The budding artist as well as the fledgling actor or accomplished musician can all find a course tailor made to fit his genius.

Various art media are explored in a wide range of offerings from beginning art to more specialized areas of jewelry and ceramics. For the first time this year a student could even select a course in photography.

Instrumental and vocal music classes, whether beginning or advanced, prepare students to perform in a number of public concerts each school year. Practice is the name of the game in the music area and practice makes perfect.

The roar of the crowd and the smell of the greasepaint beckons those with a dramatic flair and bring out the Hamlet in more than a few Federals. A newly renovated theater has made production of plays more enjoyable this year and a new director has introduced fresh ideas.

Students are free like expressing that creative imagination constructively and enroll in classes where it can be discovered.

Conducting the orchestra to a beautiful finale, Mrs. Behrman is giving her grace.

Like a madrigal at a private party, the Madrigals, a school group, find a free corner to give a performance.

Working hard. Jack Durko perfects his masterpiece.

Wes Coyle concentrates on perfecting a difficult passage.

"Yuk," says Jill Bernier, "I think I'll start over."

You are what you say, write

Required for all Federals on all grade levels, English gives students an opportunity to develop skills in written communication, language arts, literature and multi media communication.

North grade students struggle to perfect basic paragraphing, paying close attention to spelling and punctuation. Seniors burn the midnight oil and then some right down to the wire to finish those research papers. This activity affords an opportunity to use the vast resources available in our area.

Vocabulary lists, spelling lists, and grammar exercises become a way of life on all grade levels and soon life at the Fort is measured in obloquys, i before e, and verbal phrases used as nouns.

Paperbacks are only as far away as the locker, where one can find among the trig, VA history and German Level II texts such familiar title as Huckleberry Finn, Great Expectations, or Heart of Darkness.

Finally, there are those occasions when the rather structured classroom atmosphere is broken with a film, a discussion, or a demonstration speech. Whatever the activity planned, English is that one period a day when you quickly learn the meaning of that old saying You are what you say and write.

While Linda DiQuollo waits patiently, Mrs. Byrne helps a student.

As Susan Manning turns away in disgust, Mrs. Latour proves her point.

Working in an orderly fashion, Sharon Drury ties all the loose ends of her English project together.

In preparation for her upcoming test, Tina Moyolo crams in the library during lunch.

Understanding others and self

In an effort to expand its area of coverage the Social Studies Department introduced classes in sociology and psychology. These were formed to help students understand society and themselves in order to give them a better understanding of history. Participation in these classes was impressive. Mr. Parrick said "Response was better than I even anticipated, I hope it will be a part of the program for years."

This year also produced the biggest turnout in Mr. Levy's honors government program, causing him to devote his whole schedule to the program.

Filling out the department are the required courses in World History and U.S. and Virginia History and government. Two other classes that had been planned to be introduced had to be dropped.

Giving his students a disgusted look, Mr. Patrick tries to conduct class.

It seems as though Hodie Kotb is the only one in the classroom that is enjoying Mr. Combs' lecture.

A tense Evon Oliver hopes Mr. Phelps won't recognize that his girlfriend wrote the note excusing him from class.

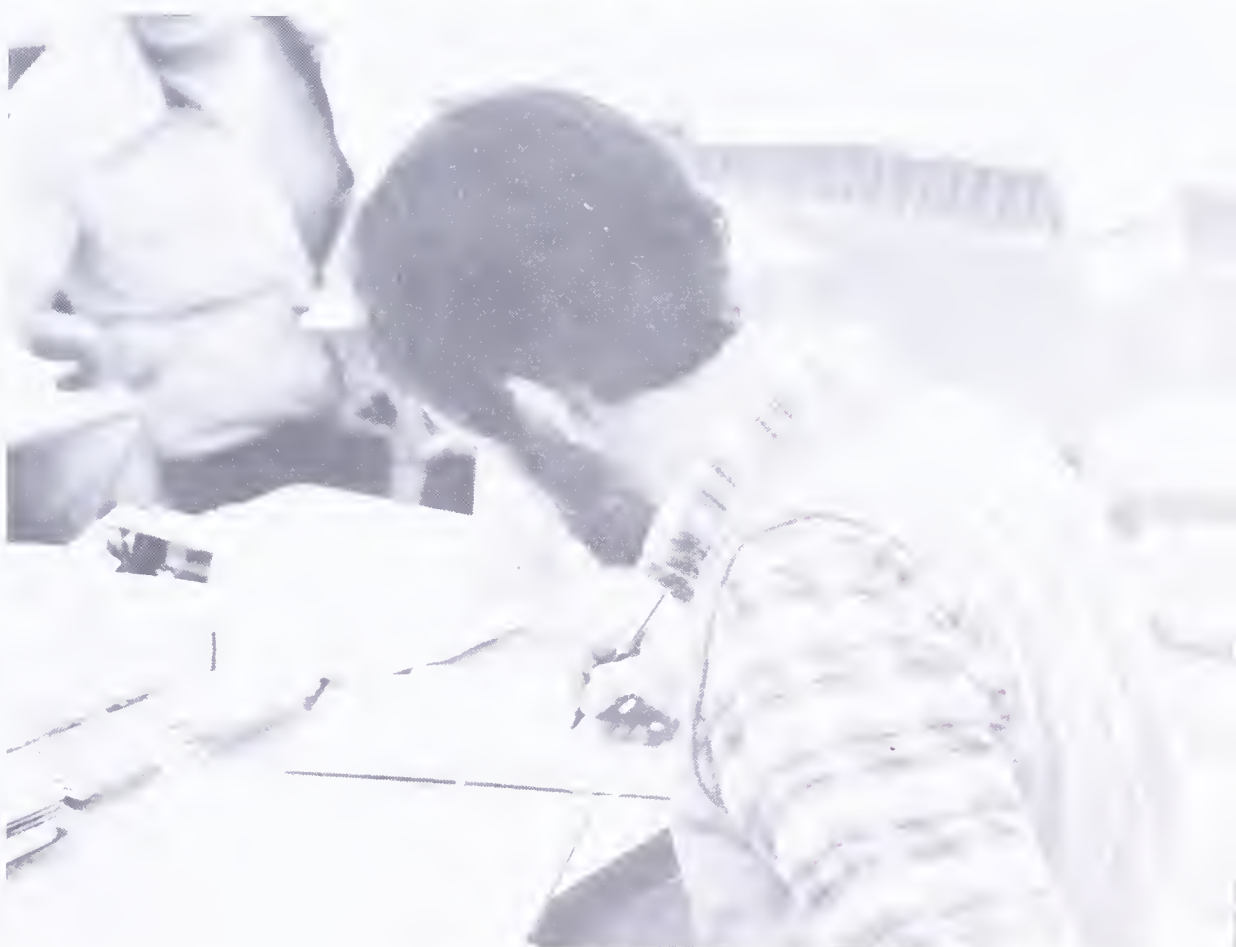

Trying to find out what was wrong with his answer, Deniz Mutlu decides to consult with Mr. Pieratti.

While Mr. Hupert discusses the "Radical Reconstruction Plans" Neil Suffa and Tadd Oakes makes a bet on the Super Bowl.

Maybe Matt Budd can fool his teachers, but he can't fool us. WAKE UP!

Catching Eric Soenz glancing at his neighbor's paper, Mr. Young records Eric's grade on that test.

Researchers in laboratories

Beakers, microscopes, and waveranks be come familiar sights when Federals march into science laboratories around the Fort. This has been a year of shifting location almost on a daily basis as the department has been undergoing an upgrading of facilities.

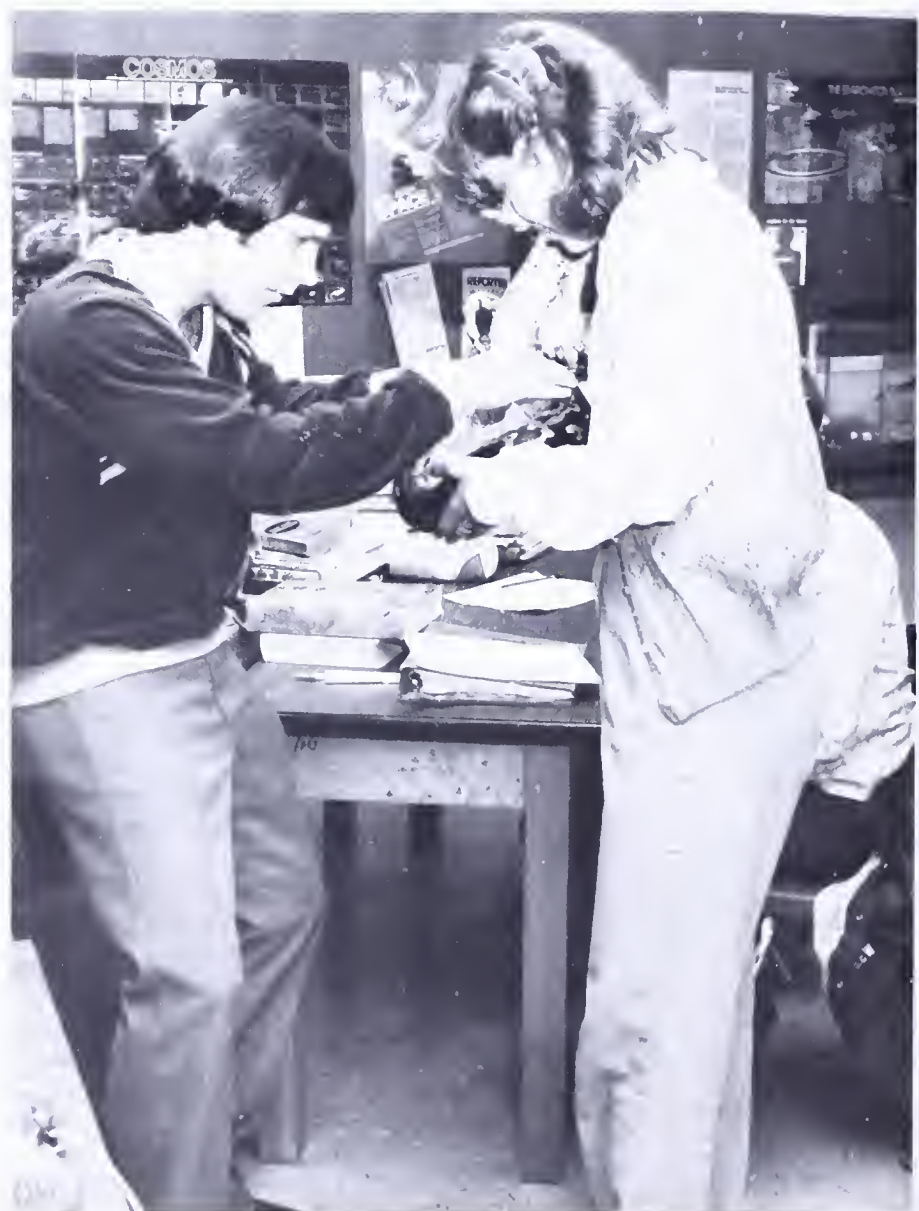

Teachers have become experts at reaching from boxes this past year. Even with the constant shuffling and turmoil, students have been enjoying their classes as much as ever, and the department has managed to keep up its fine reputation.

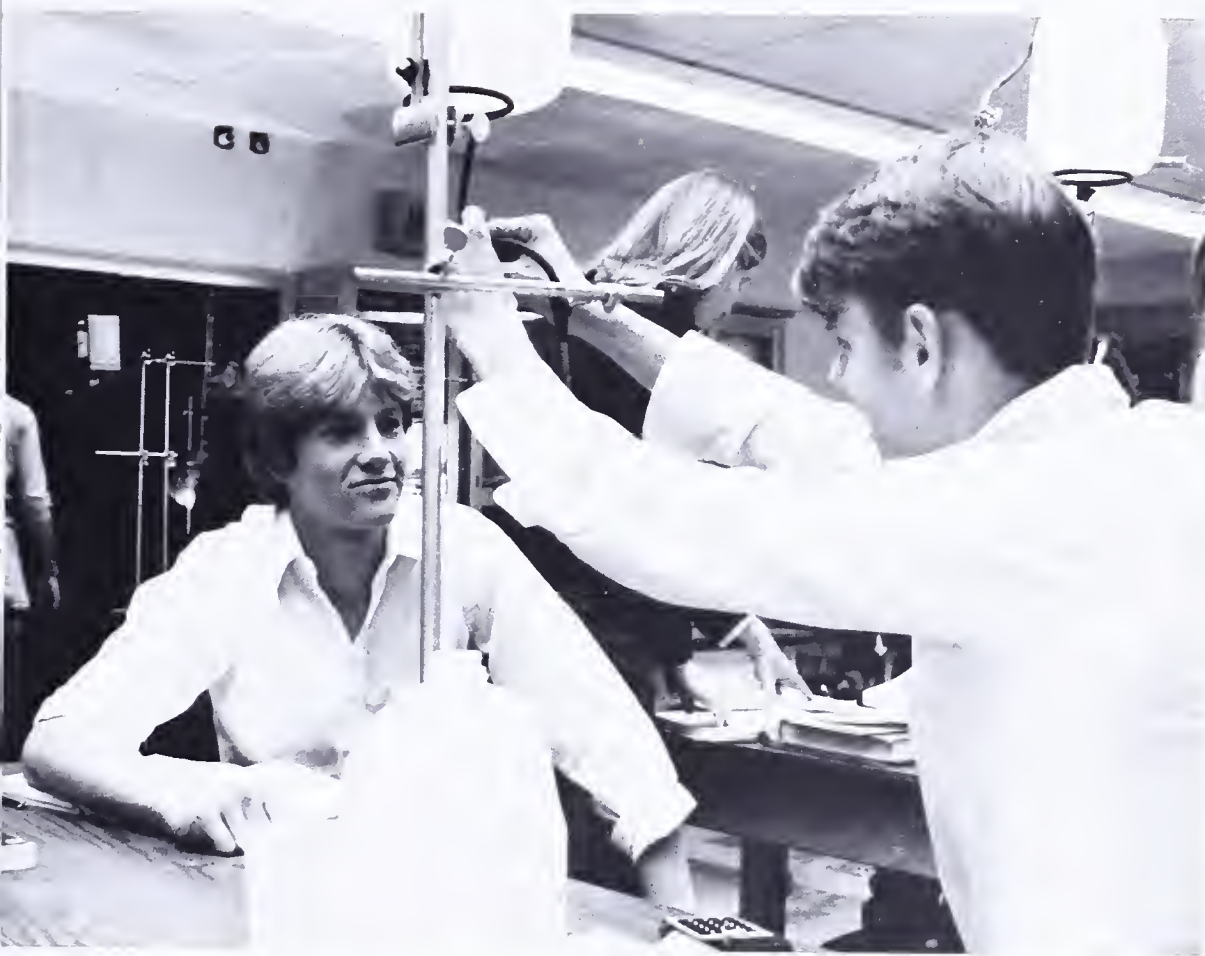

While examining a biological specimen, Laura Evans finds identifying tissues a difficult job.

During the gravitational force lab, Steve Sawyer is shocked with the results.

While examining the six foot boa constrictor, Mr. Gaudreault explains the scaling procedure of snakes to Stefanie Wolicki.

Although they are supposed to be doing a physics lab, Broc Perkuchin and Bill Turner perfect the set up for a wine distillery.

Joni Miles and Suzonne Borredo find the strange Potomac River organisms quite humorous.

Numbers figure in school curriculum

In addition to the traditional courses, the Math Department offers specialized training in computer science and individualized programs through the math lab.

Since there are several levels of math students in the lab, there is no formal instruction. This requires each student to depend on self-instruction, but when he runs into difficulty the teachers and student assistants give him the personalized help he needs. The lab is a new innovation in the department, and so far it has been a definite success.

Courses are also offered for career specialization. The two main ones are computer science and probability statistics. With the entire world moving towards computers, the computer science course has become quite popular and beneficial to students. Most of the students taking probability statistics are heading towards business majors in college.

The rest of the academic curriculum is directed towards graduation requirements and the college student. Almost every student who attends Fort Hunt has taken algebra and geometry, laying a foundation on which to build the more advanced courses.

In his spare time, Mr. Windsor tries to solve a word problem using a new untried method.

While students struggle with geometry proofs, they are often referred to questions from the rest of the lab.

While giving an oral presentation on his math projects, Charles Stebbins explains how biological time moves backwards when in space.

Showing disbelief, Mr. Jansen listens to the way his student solved the geometry proof.

After taking a closer look at the problem on the board, Carol Derry laughs at his mistake.

Electives good job training

Featuring an all elective program, Business Education offers basic, supplemental, and career oriented courses on all grade levels.

Most useful of all offerings to Federals is instruction in the skill of typing, which is really becoming a part of everyone's life. Doing it well and fast can pay off in college and/or on the job.

Of course, those courses needed to conduct everyday business affairs which include accounting, law, and steno are offered, and practical training is available with a number of cooperative employers in the area.

Upgraded facilities including a model office in air conditioned comfort make this elective area a very popular as well as valuable place to spend an hour or two a day.

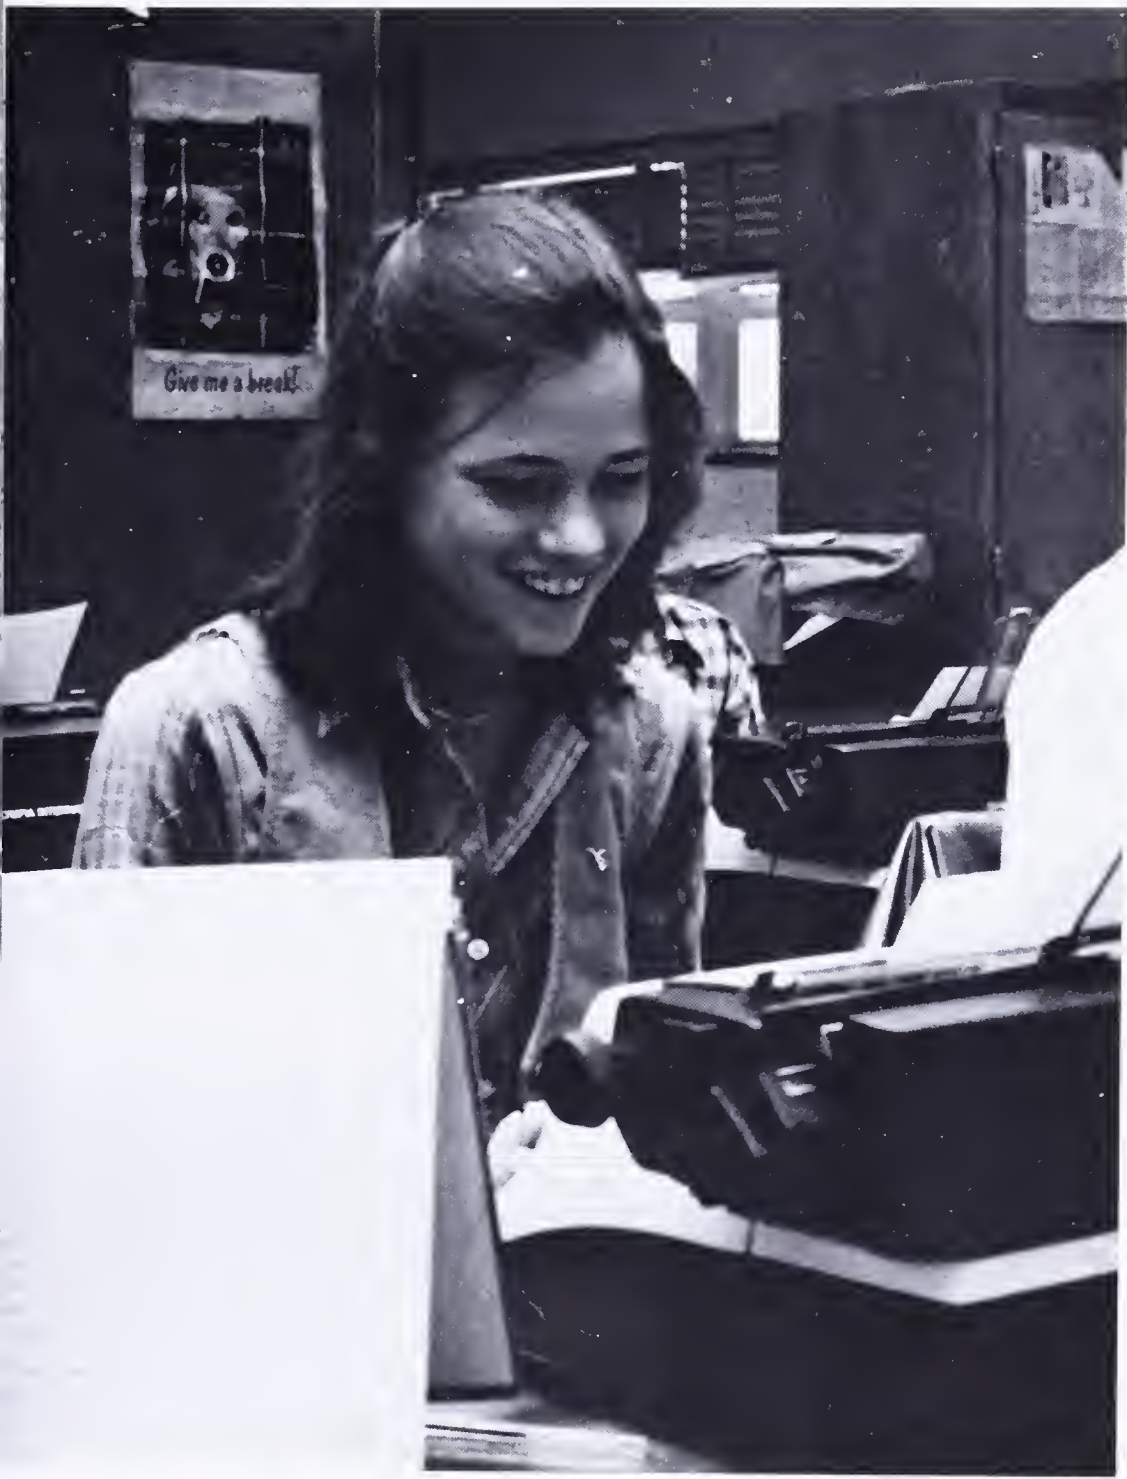

Showing their Federal spirit, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Blake attend a pep rally.

Checking over their ledgers, Tracy Davis, Robin Bardelan, and Patty Parrish find their mistakes both humorous and annoying.

Trying to see it from the teacher's point of view, Robin Bardelan takes over the class.

For goofing around in class, Alan Fantanella is forced to stay after school and get a lecture.

Attempting to finish his homework in class, Jim Doyle is caught in the oct.

Early in the morning Mrs. Driscoll tries to arouse her students in accounting.

Waiting for class to end, Brod Hirschy checks the clock.

An accented Fort achieves

Foreign languages play a big part in the academics of Fort Hunt. There are at least five levels for each of the four languages taught: Latin, German, French, and Spanish. With a little over 60% of the student body enrolled in at least one language, Fort Hunt has always done exceptionally well in this area.

Many scholarships and awards have been given to high-achievers in country, state, and national competitions.

In these language classes, teachers strive to achieve proficiency in such things as conversational ability and writing with a strong emphasis on construction and grammar.

Trying to concentrate on their studies, Latin students, Steve Templeton, Tracy Green, and Lauren Dwyer contemplate the evening's upcoming party.

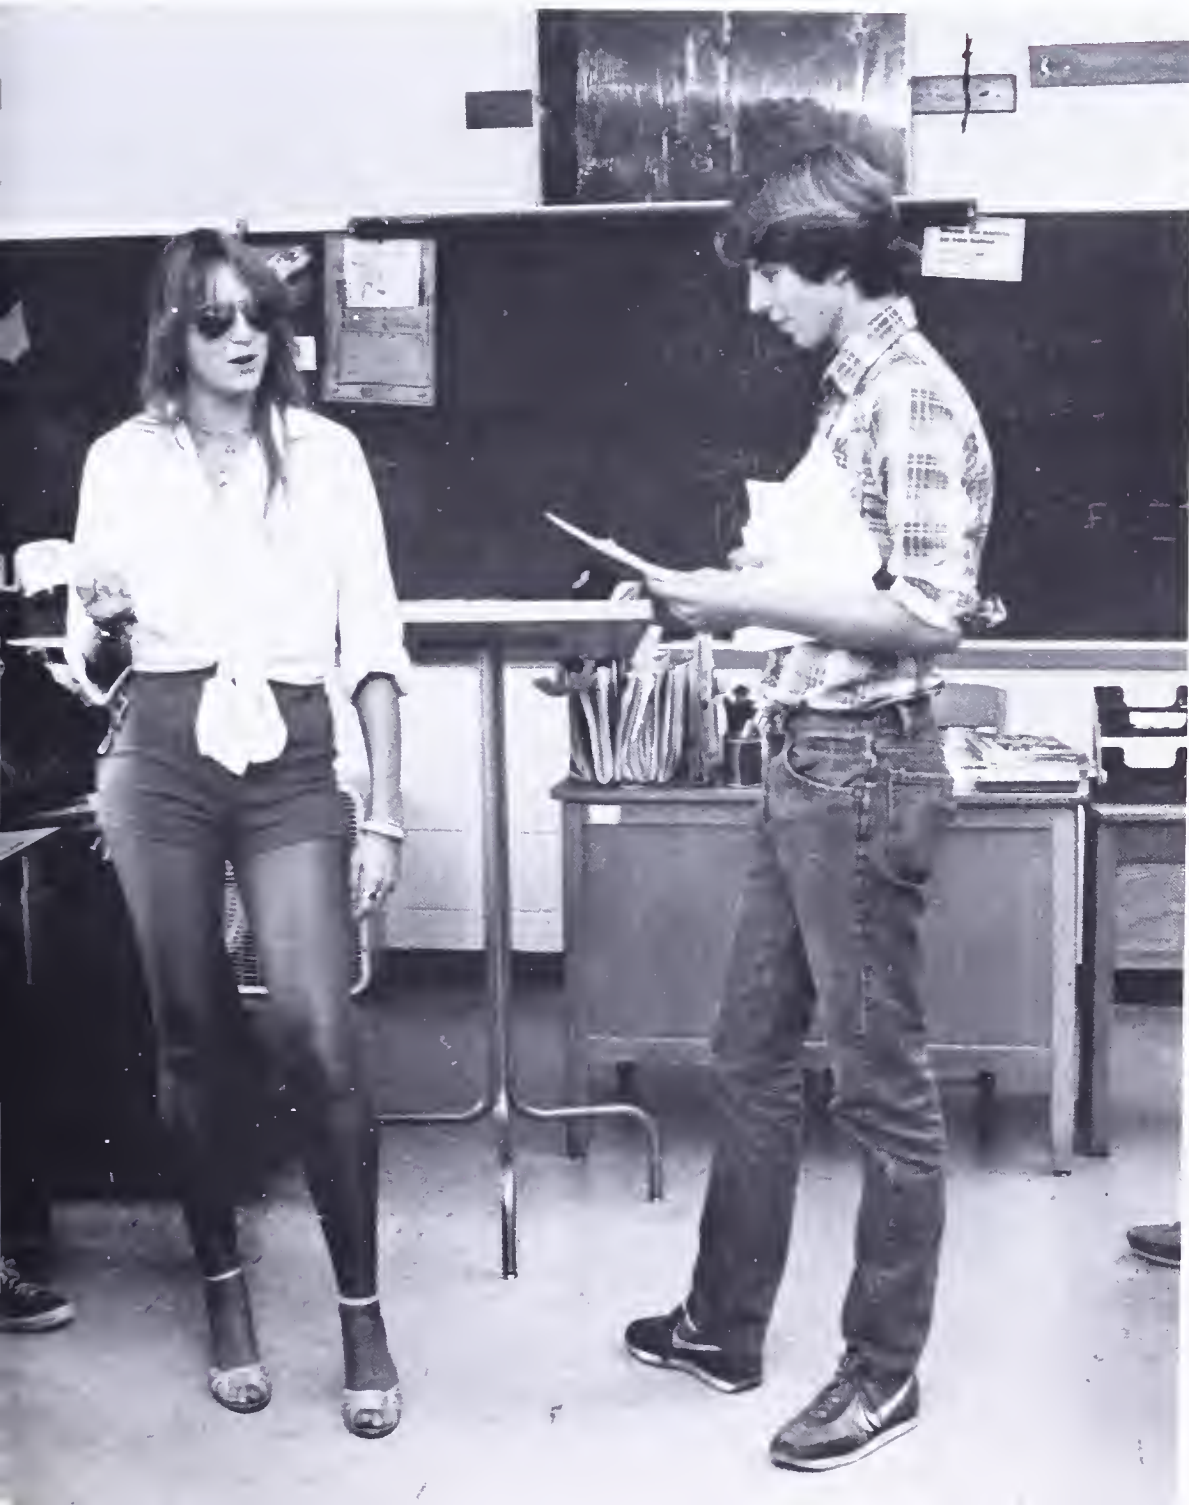

German students, Morto Dibell, and Nino Rana-dive, are overjoyed when Poul (Kucero) Claus places their gifts before them.

Pointing out the fine points in his project, Joel Bognol explains the art of Spanish bullfighting.

While performing at the Foreign Language Bazaar, Brett Emerson resists the temptation of delectable delights.

"How to Pick up Girls" doesn't translate easily into German, as Don Bowman disappointedly discovers during a skit with Monica Opp.

Practical skills offered all Feds

"Come on you @#!*. Get out of there. I got a date tonight and still gotta grab a shower," says Keenon Boyol with determination.

"Test the what? What's it look like?" asks John Lorusso.

Working hard on his mechanical drawing, Louis Hergenrother thinks about other more appealing curves.

Vocational offerings provided students with a wide variety of subjects and a chance to use their hands as well as their minds.

Industrial Arts offered four years of course study where students could make attractive and useful personal projects. Electronics and Mechanical drawing gave experience in specific technical career areas.

Home Economics was taken over by students wishing to learn household activities. Many took the child development class in order to be prepared for toddlers of their own. And many parents were "surprised" when their daughter's new recipe from home economics class.

Students learned the science and mechanics of the internal combustion engine. Students with an interest in the vocational offerings could also take Woodwork, cosmetology, and food handling.

"Cut it off, he says, I only asked for 8 inches!" exclaims Tony Mial disgusted at the extra work.

Helping their little friends enjoy Halloween, Karen Caughlin, Lisa Alexander and Dede Way find themselves enjoying their work almost as much.

Taking a break from her hard work, Beth Bornert laughs with friends.

Sighting something between him and the basket, John Redd tries his jumper anyway.

Trying every possible means of cheating, Mark McGoragal still can't hit back Kevin Kranz's spike.

Trying desperately to hit one back for once, Richard Hown gives it his all.

Feds made aware of importance of fitness

Making Federols aware of their bodies and keeping them in good condition are the objectives stored by the Physical Education staff. Mostly this one class period gives us a chance to unwind from a routine schedule and an opportunity to hone our skills in a variety of sports.

Freshman are required to porticipore in daily P.E. activities including a basic first aid unit in order to survive at the Fort until they are seniors. Likewise, sophomores must take P.E. every day, and one quarter of their time is spent in classroom driver's education to acquaint them with the workings of an automobile and driving laws.

As an elective in the junior and senior year, P.E., although never considered a solid academic pursuit, is not looked upon as a goof-off class to those who understand its purpose.

Showing his superior talent, Rick Alston lays one up over the amateurs in class.

Big and bad Dave Quant struggles hard to bench press a measely 180 pounds.

Staff deals in futures

Helping students not only with academic problems, but also with personal dilemmas, the Guidance staff provides a multitude of services for all Federals.

The many services offered by the Guidance Department range from work programs and job placement to achievement tests and scholarships. The staff also helps students with college problems.

The counselors want students to understand the importance of testing, especially the SAT and Achievement Tests. For students with weaknesses, special programs are recommended since most colleges place a great emphasis on SAT and ACT scores.

A new service has been added to the Guidance Department this year. It is known as the GIS (Guidance Information Service) computer. This assists students in finding colleges and careers to fit their interest; it proved to be a beneficial help to the Fort's college-bound students.

Reviewing college requirements with graduating senior Leonord Stevens, Mr. Urso computes a grade point average.

Taking a break from their future, Susan Watters and Erin Slottery find the College Career Center a good place to talk.

After scheduling another college program, Dr. Waldorf signs admittance passes for interested students.

While making a schedule change for a student, Miss Baker gladly tells another about the SAT testing program.

The usual bubbly Mr. Cannally finds conversation with Theresa Woods somewhat difficult before his morning coffee.

Real people invade Fort Hunt

For a majority of the students at Fort Hunt, once the bell rings at 2:20 they don't think about their teachers until they do their homework that night. When they do think about them, they are pictured in a classroom environment.

Most of Fort Hunt's faculty lead very interesting lives outside school grounds. One of these people is Mr. Dick Dyer, who teaches U.S. and VA history.

On weekends and afterschool hours one can find Mr. Dyer engaged in such activities as model building and lapidary. Lapidary is the craft of cutting, sanding, and polishing stones which can then be mounted in rings, brooches, and necklaces. Mr. Dyer finds it "a lot of fun" to do.

Occasionally he gets out for a round of golf or fresh water fishing in the streams. His favorite type of bait is spinners because they're not as heavy, and that makes it very "relaxing."

Mr. Dyer received his BA and his BS from Southwest Missouri State and he got his MA Degree in history from George Washington University.

So next time your test isn't graded on time, remember that teachers need time to relax too.

Writing is a hobby shared by many people, especially Mrs. Andrea Kerr. This Fort Hunt English teacher is now in the process of writing a novel. "The act of putting words on paper generates excitement," says Mrs. Kerr. Working as a writer for two years (1962-1964) enticed her to start her novel.

The story is a fictionalized account of a murder-suicide incident set in Old Towne, Alexandria. The author describes it as somewhat of a "murder for profit." Although it is based on a real event, Mrs. Kerr is building suspense by changing motives and personalities.

With her busy teaching schedule, summer remains the only chance to write. Teaching is at the top of her priorities. She even changed from her writing career to teaching because "there's more stimulation in teaching."

Cooking up a storm with the gourmonds: Marsha Sater, Dorothy McClelland, Kenneth Craddock, Phyllis Douglass, Marilyn Schwaner, and Susan Pratt.

Almost everyone who has heard of Mr. Jack Combs knows that he is an antique car fanatic. He became interested in these cars in 1955, because of his fascination for them. He has owned a total of 36 different cars, and most of them have been Pierce Arrows.

Mr. Combs supports this expensive hobby by selling various car parts at flea markets, roughing up cars and then selling them, and occasionally writing articles for several antique car magazines. "The hobby gives many opportunities to meet contacts, and most of the people in the hobby are friendly and honest," and he feels it is a great way to make lasting friendships.

Sailing in the wind with the booters: Paul Levy, Robert Waldorf, Thomas Cabelus, Jane Hall, Marilyn Williams, and Peter Davies.

Through the woods and up the mountains with the campers and hikers: Lynn Wells, Clyde Phelps, Wendy Saacke, Virginia Blake, Jane Glazer, Lee Hennig, Robert Pierotti, and Marilyn Williams.

Twenty-five years ago Marilyn Williams started her teaching career at Robinson High School. Since then she has taught in many places including Groveton High School and George Washington University. Two years ago she became a member of the Fort Hunt faculty, teaching art and photography.

Although Mrs. Williams has had a successful career in teaching, she didn't consider it while in college. She set her goals to become an interior designer. She realized that the companies she worked for were not interested in her talents, but instead how much she could sell. From there she started teaching because of the convenient hours.

During the summer Mrs. Williams and her husband travel to Europe, but not as regular tourists. Instead they camp or stay at one of the native's homes, biking through the villages or hiking in the mountains. For every school break there is something planned, for instance, in the near future her family has arranged to kayak down through the Okefenokee Swamp in Georgia.

She has been all over the world and in forty-seven states. Besides teaching, Mrs. Williams interests are in architectural designing. She serves as President of the Northern Virginia Art Education Association.

Volleying on the court with the tennis enthusiasts: Angelita Kabler, Nancy Driscoll, Jane Hall, Leslie Rodriguez, and Beverly Byrne.

Searching for past treasures with the on-tique lovers: Jack Combs, Patricia Efthymes, Thomas Johnson, Phyllis Douglass, Marilyn Schwaner, and Luvonne Harms.

Through the eye of a needle with the sewers: Angelita Kabler, Sharon Naglehour, Leslie Rodriguez, Janet Crowell, Phyllis Douglass, Luvonne Harms, Susan Pratt, Jan Beer, and Patricia Stansbery.

An award for one's efforts is always considered flattering. When Fort Hunt's Mr. Hupart became Fairfax County's #1 History Teacher of the Year, he considered the award "very much a compliment."

Hupart decided in high school that he wanted to teach history. An old history teacher of his, Martin Green, was the major influence in this decision. Green, according to Mr. Hupart, was an enthusiastic crusader who gave his students a conscience of the day's issues. Thanks to Martin Green and the fact that Mr. Hupart finds history exciting, a career was started that has lasted twenty years.

Mr. Hupart has his own philosophy: "Each teacher has his own style and personality. I think that any new person . . . can make a contribution to a school system . . . I also feel that I have a good command of my subject matter, and I enjoy what I'm doing."

Cultivating the soil with the gardeners: Eugene Skinner, Slyde Phelps, Carmen Urso, Beverly Byrne, Robert Pierotti, Susan Pratt, Cynthia McIver, and Jack Combs.

Raising pets has always been a popular hobby, one to which Miss Emily Baker and Ms. Margo Tyree have devoted much of their spare time. Miss Baker with her Lhasa Apsos and Ms. Tyree with her Boston Terriers find their pets most enjoyable.

The dogs are always on display to unwelcome visitors; in addition, Ms. Tyree's are often displayed to viewers at local dog shows. Through showing her dogs, she has received several different ribbons. Both love the loyalty and devotion that their pets have given and continue to give to them.

Taking the world by surprise with the camero buffs: Marilyn Williams, Janet Crowell, Paul Levy, Marilyn Schwaner, Lynn Wells, and Jon South.

A school is not all classrooms, and books, and learning. It takes many people performing many jobs to ensure a smooth operation. These persons contribute immeasurably to the well being of each of us and help in a hundred different ways every day.

It would be difficult to realize how our six hours could be spent without taking a break for a hot lunch served in a clean and attractive cafeteria. Where would we go if that fever suddenly hit us during second period or if we needed to have a college transcript sent?

The support staff is a dedicated and hard-working group of people who individually as well as collectively serve the needs of the Federal student body. They usually know more about what is happening around here than the faculty or students, and they always seem willing to help wherever the problem.

SPORTS

Sports, as always, played an important role in Fort Hunt High School's makeup. For non-participants, a sport provided an event in which fellow students could come together and act jointly as a group. Many felt the sporting events were when Fort Hunt was at its best.

"We actually had some spirit this year," comments Bryant Lehr! "Everyone got into the cheers! This is definitely the way it should be!"

For participants, sports provided a median where students could participate in a group, making contributions as an individual.

"When you know that you've made a contribution to the team, even just a small one, you feel like you've accomplished something," says Chris Bauer.

Sports gave us a good excuse to get out of the house and be with each other. We joined, united in a common cause. Fort Hunt, as the body, was in plain view.

Federal coaches
lead the way

Improving . . .
our team
our game
ourselves

The power of the Fort Hunt athletic program depends upon the strength and integrity of its athletes and coaches. Both dedicate their time and effort to achieve one final product: a winning team.

The spirit that is found within our school is demonstrated well by its athletes. The Federals' awesome determination never allows us to give up. If we go down, it is certain that we go down fighting until the last second of time has vanished from the clock. If we win, it is with dignity and courtesy.

Competing on a Fort Hunt team means knowing the exultation of victory and a job well done. It means knowing the tricks of being a winner, of psyching yourself and your teammates up, of developing a winning form and winning attitude. Through hard work and dedication we strive to improve our team, our game, and ourselves.

With the support of the mighty Fort behind us, Federals represent our proud school. We fight with every nerve and sinew in our bodies. We meet victory with pride or defeat with honor, accepting each with the knowledge that we have done our best.

1980-81 teamwork, combined with individual effort, has persistently and proudly upheld Fort Hunt's tradition of winning as well as the tradition of good sportsmanship.

Effectiveness of teamwork displayed

The Freshman Football Team had an outstanding season winning five games and tying one. This was all the team needed to win the Gunston title at the freshman level. Coached by Lloyd Golden, the team worked long and hard hours to excel and reach many goals.

Cheerleaders shine in light of teams' success

Intense with the game Robin Barden displays her concern in the final quarter of the Lee - Fort Hunt football game.

Exhausted in the second round of the fight song, the varsity cheerleaders exclaim relief as the pep rally ends.

Fort Hunt Varsity Cheerleaders showed their spirit at the National Cheerleading Foundation Summer Camp at Richmond University. The girls worked from 5:30 a.m. to 9:30 learning many new chants, cheers, stunts, and participating in competitions. The girls won many awards and received second place in semi-finals. Coach Terry Turner, an ex-federal cheerleader, believed the girls provided many creative ideas for the pep rallies. A highlight of the season was the much talked about "Big Spender Routine" which made Mr. Cabelus "very uncomfortable."

"Working to rouse the crowds was the hardest task for us to do," explained captain Mary Berh, Patty, Lisa, and Debbie. Their hours of hard work have rewarded the varsity cheerleaders with the sound of rousing spirit. Dedication and school spirit have kept "our" cheerleaders on top.

At the homecoming pep assembly, the cheerleaders were the first to welcome the homecoming king and queen.

Left guard, Brod Sheehon, clears the way for running back, Dorren Belk, in 1980 season action

The general teamwork and execution of the 1980 Varsity Football Team was superior. The season opener against Woodbridge proved to be a small disappointment, but the team showed a great deal of sportsmanship and bounced back to win the next four games. An unfortunate loss to the Colonials only instilled stronger determination in the boys as they strove to keep up the Fort's winning tradition. Each of the remaining four games was fought hard, with the most stunning defeat being that over Groveron. The Feds remained undefeated in the Gunston District. With the excellent ball control of the offensive line and the defense's desire to kill the team had it made. It was a rapid climb for the Federals up the football ladder as they moved into the realm of champions.

As the season wound down to a close, the result was that, as usual, the "Big Game" meant the season. And that meant arch-rivals Mr. Vernon. Nothing else mattered and no tie or win would send our team to regionals.

As the game began both teams showed their nervousness, and the play was conventional with few chances taken. The second half provided excitement as the action increased.

Turnovers plagued the Federals early in the third quarter, ending in a Mr. Vernon lead, 14 to 0. However, as always the Feds fought back full force. A pass to Wayne Jackson brought the score to 14 to 7, but it didn't seem to be enough. That's when the miracle happened.

With twenty-nine seconds left on the clock a pass from Bill Turner to Wayne Jackson was deflected by Mr. Vernon. For a fleeting moment the season appeared to be over, but out of nowhere, Darren Belk made an "impossible reception" and caught the deflected ball, racing seventy-three yards for a score. Chris Ryan was called into the field and he kicked a perfect field goal.

An injured Federal starter, running back Evan Oliver, is deep in thought of the day he can once again join his teammates on the gridiron.

With a large experienced team, the tennis players came out swinging and didn't stop until they had the District trophy. Usual practices consisted of of inner squad competition and several drills led by captains Martha Ridder, Janine Clark and Tish Wright.

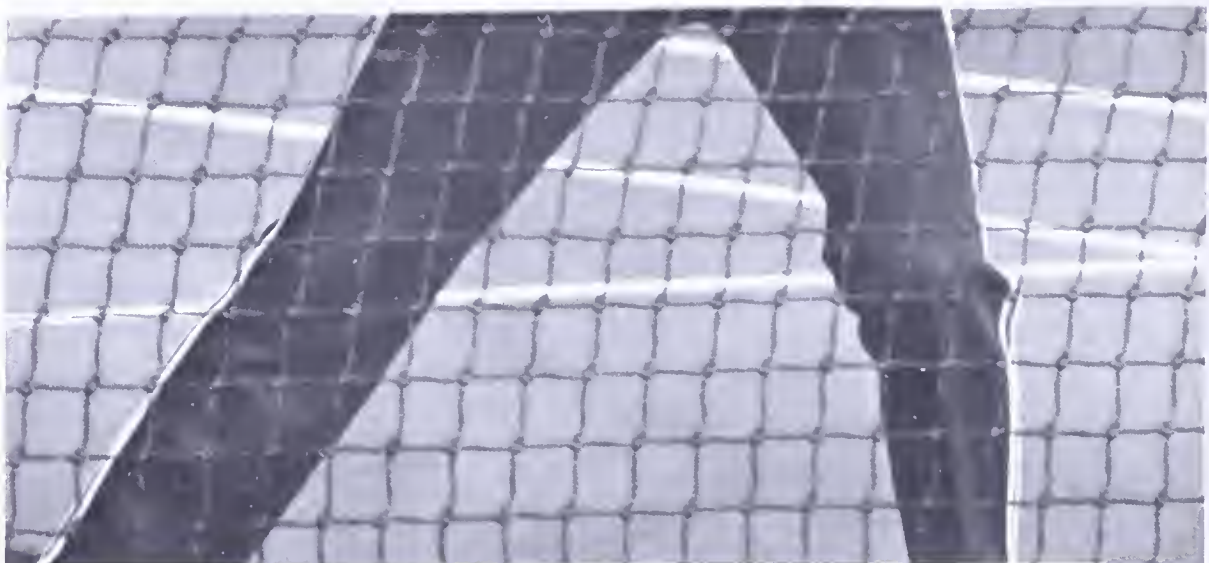

Without the benefit of large spectator encouragement, the sport was basically an individual effort motivated by self determination. Coach Robinson stated, "We had the championship in the bag. Before the season even started I knew we had a winning team."

To play on a J.V. team, a player must be eager to learn as well as to give her best for the benefit of the team. They went to the Gunston District playoffs but lost in the semi-finals. "Working with the girls," says Dr. Armstrong, "has been great because they are very coachable, cooperative, and smart." Plowing their way through the season, the Freshmen Roundballers showed enthusiasm and spirit. Their ambitions revealed the strengths and desires needed to be an effective team.

Their skills and techniques were developed but not always apparent in the games. The losses taught perseverance, forcing the team to develop a desire to improve. As freshmen, this is essential to the future of the varsity team.

When looking at this year's team, and all freshmen teams, the record should not mean much. The importance of the season was the experience gained and skills developed, not the record. This growth made the season successful.

FH's upcoming shooting stars

Looking at the basket to see if it's too far, Brian Guthrie debates whether to shoot.

Pleased at the way the boys have been playing, Coach Casey gives them last minute instructions to stay on top.

With the goal set to improve itself in preparation for next year's varsity, this year's JV Team showed an interest in fundamentals. Coached by Tom Casey, they put forth a strong effort both offensively and defensively.

Forwards Anthony Carter and freshman Matt Krapf provided most of the scoring as guards Mike Day and Robert Funderburk handled the assists. Defensively tight zone with strong rebounding limited the opponents to one shot, usually from the outside.

The concentration on fundamentals produced long boring practices, but this should prove to be helpful in the long run with only 3 juniors on this year's varsity. The JV players will be required to pick up the slack.

Trying to get around his opponent, James Funderburk looks for a way to get 2 points.

Dazzling audiences with sharp movements and enthusiasm, the 1980-81 Drill Team provided the year with much excitement. Capturing first place at summer camp, the girls learned many dance and pom pom routines. Formations such as "FH", "FEDS", and "#1" were old time favorites of the fans.

Pep rallies and basketball games also received undivided attention with choreographed "Be True to Your School", "Fame", and "Whip-it". Cairns Patty Fulron and Peggy Winters expressed that "working with the marching band gave a new outlook to the Drill Team."

The Drill Team represented Fort Hunt in the George Washington parade and in state-wide competitions. By working hard and long hours many new and creative ideals were developed to the delight and success of team.

Continuing the domination of all areas of track that started with Cross Country, Fort Hunt's Indoor Track teams excelled throughout the year. Complementing the team's excellent performances in invitational meets, both boy's and girl's teams won the district meets.

The boys were led by Tony Ewing and Bob Murray. For the girls, Sue Miley and Derial Rhodes were both double winners. In the regionals, the girls won again with the boys finishing third. Unfortunately, there is no state championship competition for indoor track.

The development of the underclassmen this winter should lead to the continued excellence of Fort Hunt's Track team for both the spring season and years to come.

Foglio's animals: forever grapple

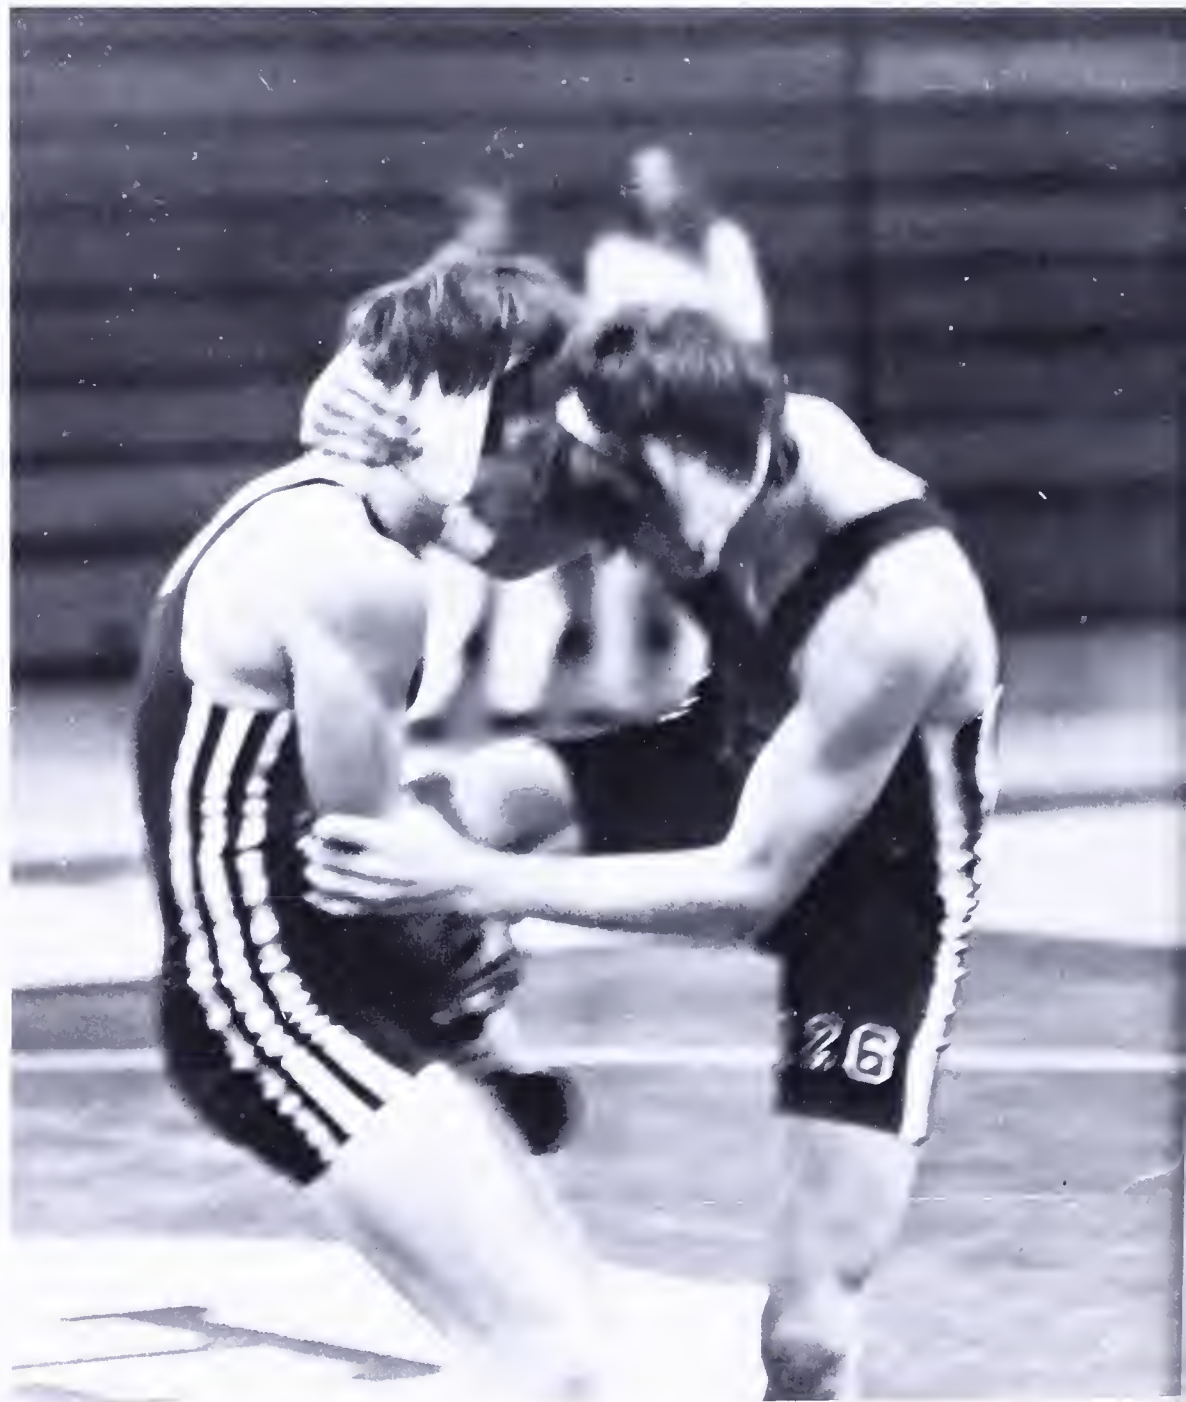

Behind the strength of the lighter weight classes, the Wrestling Team had one of their most successful seasons. The perseverance required to wrestle was displayed by the team's never say die attitude. With two district champions, Greg Henry and Pat Slattery, and two runners up, the team was prepared for the regional match.

Unfortunately, the regional competition proved to be too much for the wrestlers. Although seven wrestlers qualified for the tournament, only Greg Henry qualified for the finals. Seemingly disappointing, but considering the competition, it was a very impressive performance in qualifying the wrestlers for the tournament.

Throughout their efforts to meet the weight class, the team members never complain. Days of solids, water and salt pills were commonplace. Their efforts were rewarded with fine performance.

Led by senior captains Patty Kosciuszko and Angie Sranbery, the 1981 Girls Gymnastics Team secured an outstanding 5-0 overall record.

The old cliché "it's not the size of the wand that matters - it's the magic on it," definitely applied to the team which consisted of only ten girls, making them the second smallest team in the district.

While the girls' confidence grew as the season progressed, Coach Robinson had a positive feeling from the start. "This is the best team we've had at Fort Hunt since I've been coaching. They each possess the concentration, the strength, and the stamina it takes to produce an undefeated record. I'm very proud of them."

Anyone who attended a meet noticed three main factors: the intensity of each performance, the moral support to each other, and the fact that all of them enjoyed what they were doing.

The gymnasts were definitely out there to have fun, as well as to rake in another win.

Divers: dangerous when wet!

Through many belly flops, back flops, and face flops, the Fort Hunt Diving Team turned out to be a very awesome group. Practicing at the same time as the swimmers, they had the same long hours of torture. For a diver, the butterflies hit while they were on the board waiting to dive. The dive had to be a perfect somersault, or perfect arch, or a perfect landing. Led by senior boys Billy Byrd and Carlos Perdomo and girls Vicki Perdomo and Meg Myers, the team had a very successful year. Byrd won the state championship with Perdomo third. The season was a definite success.

CLUBS

With a large group of individuals there is, of course, diversity. Clubs provided us with an opportunity to pursue our various interests with others who shared similar ideas and common goals.

Within these small subgroups, there were opportunities for learning about oneself through a spirit of cooperation with one's peers.

"As president of Hi-Y, I discovered my own capabilities as a leader by learning to work with others," remarks Chris Ryan.

Fort Hunt students continued a tradition of substantial involvement and interest in a broad spectrum of clubs and organizations.

Keys aid school and community

Key Club is composed of boys selected for qualities of leadership, scholastic performance, and school participation. Through hard work on the part of the sponsor, Mr. Shorridge, and the President David Quant, the Key Club enjoyed a successful year. As a service club, members of the Key Club helped to improve the community, and school by having car washes and selling Christmas trees. The money received was given to various charities.

The Keyettes Club, an honorary girls service club, is dedicated to the improvement of its school and community. Under the leadership of their sponsor, Mr. Jansen, the girls strive towards their goals and needs of others. They have meetings every Thursday night and with the help of Maura Connell (pres.) and the rest of the officers the girls work on the completion of service projects.

This has been a very active year which included activities such as making banners, an occasional dinner party, selling Meribells and doughnuts, cleaning up after football games, and earlier in the year they partied at Great Falls.

With 45 members, the girls work together to make their club the best. They make everyday pleasant, celebrate spring and sell flowers, and cater to the needs of others. Of course, the Keyettes see more than one smile because they give more.

Service clubs aid community

After an uneventful year under the previous officers, the Fort Hunt Hi-Y started the new year with a bang. A trip to Great Falls in October, organized by officers Chris Ryan (Pres.), Scott Smith (V-Pres.), Bryant Lehr (Sec.), Jack Martinelli (Tres.), and Scott Brinitzer (Chap.), gave members a new and more exciting type of activity.

As the new year began, the usual money-raisers, candy, and donut sales, were used to raise revenue. Trips to the Family Fish House and Ground Round kept the club in trouble with area proprietors. "We're just really rowdie," exclaims member Bob Gibbons. "We just can't control ourselves!" Students were witness to this aspect of the club as they watched the enthusiastic Hi-Y cheering section at home basketball games.

To be a member of the Fort Hunt Tri-Hi-Y is to develop leadership and brotherhood increasing an awareness of oneself to the world.

President Jannette Joy, and other officers along with 67 members keep the club active throughout the year. Tri-Hi-Y sponsors dress-up day each year, thus promoting friendly and crazy relations between people. Leadership is "linked" when the club sponsors the spirit chain.

Mrs. Pat Anderson, the sponsor, promotes and supports the members throughout each activity. To keep the ball rolling Tri-Hi-Y meets twice a month to discuss and plan activities.

Those girls serve our school well with their enthusiastic involvement in many activities.

Junior Civitans is one of Fort Hunt's many service clubs. With their sponsor, Mrs. Beer, the twenty member club specializes in doing projects for retarded citizens and deprived children.

In working with retarded citizens, the Civitans are donating all proceeds from their fruitcake sales to the Association for Retarded Citizens; the group also plans to hold a Northern Virginia Training Academy Dance for retarded citizens.

In dealing with children, they hold Headstart parties for underprivileged three to four year olds. These parties are part of a whole program to help the children.

The Black Cultural Alliance, led by Matt Budd (pres.) along with sponsor Mrs. Driggins, tries to promote unity, respect, and pride among the white and minority students at Fort Hunt.

The main fund raisers for the club are bake sales, car washes, and holiday grams. With the help of 34 dependable, hardworking members BCA has become a positive and interesting social experience at Fort Hunt.

During a meeting, Civitan members Amy Parsons and Beth Hernandez debate plans for future months.

Members of BCA take a lunch break to restore their energy.

Feds speak out on many issues

In order to belong to the Debate Team this year, one had to be willing to work. We spent many hours after school, before school and on weekends gathering evidence and practicing speeches in order to improve our skills as debaters.

Basically, debating is an organized argument, yet it's much more complicated than that. There are two teams, each composed of two people. One team takes a negative stand on an issue, the other an affirmative stand. The same issue is argued the entire year by all the debaters.

Each debater has a certain time to speak and use evidence against the other team. The judge (usually a past debater) then decides which side is more convincing.

To encourage excellence in public speaking and develop poise and self-confidence in making oral presentations before an audience is the purpose of the Forensics League. The League is headed by President Joe Dzikiewicz and sponsored by Mr. Wells.

Interscholastic competition in the Northern Virginia Speech League provides a forum each month of the school year in one of the following categories: original oratory, extemporaneous speaking, impromptu speaking, original works, prose or poetry reading, and even spelling.

The group also competed in the Virginia High School League, The Washington Forensic League, and the National Forensic League, where they try for points that count toward the winning of the Forensics trophy awarded at the end of the year.

"El quien tiene dos lenguas, tiene dos almas" The man who has two languages has two souls

The main purpose of the Spanish Club is to promote interest in the Spanish language, customs and culture. With the leadership of sponsor Sr. Wilkinson, the club has been very successful in their activities. It is open to all students taking, or just interested in the language.

The members participate in activities such as bake sales, going to dinner and in the beginning of the year the Spanish Club had soccer tournaments with various language clubs. The New York trip, during which they visited many places including the United Nations Building, was an educational trip as well as a fun one.

With the help of president Twana King and the other officers the club was a success. This club which meets on Tuesdays has 36 members and each person contributes so that others will be able to learn the importance of the Spanish world in our society.

Within the first month of school this year the German Club was hosting a whopping membership of 65 enthusiastic students.

This active bunch, under the fine guidance of sponsor Frau McIver and president Jane Schwenker, organized a trip to a bakery, an excursion to Busch Gardens and a highly competitive soccer game against the rival Lorin Club. Funds for these activities were generated by candy sales featuring the popular Gummi Beors.

For the first time this year the Fort Hunt Deutschers became members of the Virginia Organization of German Students.

Fortress struggles to keep sanity!

Getting this yearbook finished and to press was not as easy as it might seem. When those dreaded deadlines came staff members got nervous and rushed around taking pictures and writing copy which should have been finished weeks before.

The Fortress '81 staff, under the direction of Kenneth Craddock and editor-in-chief David Guthrie, accomplished all of these things and a thousand more. Because of our financial budget, we were forced to sell many items to make up for our lack of money. Such well-known items as spirit wear, advertisements, post-a-note, and last but not least candy, featuring the ever-so-popular M&M's. The staff's goal has been to capture not just the jocks, freaks, or brains, but all types of people as individuals and as groups.

Staff members became a very cozy bunch staying after school until 6:00 many evenings and giving up several Saturday mornings.

To see our efforts in print at last is the final reward for our many hours of hard work and agony. We like what we've done and know you will too!

"32 pages due tomorrow! But Mr. Craddock," screams Sheila Hargis, "I thought the deadline was next week!"

Typing copy for a deadline, Tish Wright shows undying dedication to the Fortress staff.

The Frontline is put together and published by the journalism class here at Farr Hunt. Its purpose is to inform the student body of news and articles of interest to all.

Having acquired a new sponsor in Assistant Administrator Mr. Hamel, the staff was off to a shaky start this year.

They began a new circulation method by sending the paper out to all Federal homes, and hope to continue the practice in the future.

Although faced with a menacing deadline, Dallyn Duggan seems to keep her sense of humor.

Reviving school spirit, The Fort Hunt band parades through the halls before pep rallies

FORT HUNT MARCHING BAND

Instrumentalists blend talents

This year the Fort Hunt Band, led by Mr. Etheridge, marched to success with its 65 plus members. The talented band won second place in the Falls Church Marching Band Competition. They also competed in the Mr. Vernon Marching Band Classic and came out on top with first place. After achieving these high honors the band was invited to the Mid-West Band and Orchestra Clinic in Chicago, Illinois. They were 1 out of only 5 bands in the US chosen to attend the clinic and perform at the Conrad Hilton.

The Fort Hunt Orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. Marilyn Schwaner, includes some of our school's most talented musicians. A solo concert given in March featured special guest H. Stevens Brewster, principle bassist for the National Symphony.

The orchestra is planning a trip to Vienna, Austria where they will take part in international high school level competition in which the toughest competitor against Fort Hunt will be two Japanese orchestras.

The Fort Hunt Orchestra displays the holiday spirit in its annual Christmas Concert.

Chosen groups blend voices

Madrigals is a special group chosen by auditions. The name implies that they sing only literature from the Renaissance Era, but in practice they perform music from all periods. Much of the music performed is done without accompaniment (a cappella), which is the most advanced and difficult type of choral singing.

During the Christmas season, the busiest time of year, the Madrigals are in great demand and sing for school, community, government, and private functions. Their Renaissance costumes add to the atmosphere. This group is composed of sixteen singers, whose voices blend to produce perfect harmony.

Practicing for their engagement at Woodlawn, Madrigals Jack Durka, Tim Evans and Andy Walker display perfect harmony with the help of Mr. Murray.

On their way back from a concert in Washington, the Madrigals had the sudden urge to stop and sing for passersby in Olde Towne.

Voices express songs of joy

Of all the departments in the school, the one with the greatest number of participants is the chorus program.

Being an elective credit in the curricular schedule, chorus is chosen by those interested in music, not only singing, but also reading and understanding musical notes.

The Chamber Choir is made up of all those students who take chorus as a class. In the course of the year the group participates in many musical programs.

Those smaller groups, such as girls and boys ensemble and girls chorus, are composed of students who try out and are chosen by Mr. Murray for their knowledge of music and their keen ability to harmonize.

"Do, Re, Mi, Fa, So, La, Ti, Do." The Madrigals warm up before practice with Mr. Murray.

Students meet business world

Distributive Education, sponsored by Mrs. Effthames, provides specialized training for persons entering or already employed in retail, wholesale and service occupations. The regular DE program has two initial objectives: to prepare high school students for future employment in a vast and dynamic field and to improve the occupational competency of adults entering retail, wholesale and other distributive occupations.

The purpose of the FBLA (Future Business Leaders Of America), sponsored by Mrs. Loveless, is to develop competent, aggressive business leaders by strengthening the confidence of students in themselves and in their work.

With the help of sponsor Mrs. Loveless, Robin Bardelan, president of FBLA goes over plans for the approaching month.

Discussing money raising ideas, FBLA members John Grizzard and Alan Fantanella review next month's schedule.

Federals eye the world

The Audio Visual Club, sponsored by Mr. Sourh, instructs its members in the operation of various equipment and helps them to utilize their knowledge in efficient classroom procedure.

In addition to filming basketball and football games and wrestling matches, the AV club also participates in a video workshop at local TV station WETA in Washington.

Seemingly the epitome of concentration, members of the Art and Photography Club practice their talents.

Sponsored by Mrs. Williams, the Art and Photography Club is comprised of some of our school's most talented artists. Painting, drawing, batik, and working with paper mache and clay are the media that the art oriented members work with. This Club is designed for those creative students who not only wish to pursue their artistic interests and talents but also have a fetish for the increasingly popular hobby of photography. They learn the basic skills involved in this pastime such as processing, enlarging and picture-taking itself.

Federals show imagination

The Dungeons and Dragons Club, sponsored by Mr. South, is composed of people with fanciful imaginations and a taste for the world of fantasy. This fictitious game is based on the characters in the books of J.R. Tolkien. The group is affiliated with the United Dungeon Association.

Members of the Astronomy Club, sponsored by Mrs. Hennig, all share a common interest, a yearning to gaze at the stars. The heavens have always held a certain mystery for man. These "stargazers" prepared themselves to unravel these mysteries through the use of Fort Hunt's own planetarium and visits to the Smithsonian's Air and Space Museum.

A fascination for not only acting, but also for every aspect of theater production as well, is held by those students involved in the Drama Club. After the departure of Mr. Gassek, the drama department received Mr. Dorson, former teacher of J.J. Kelly High School in Wise County.

Reciting her lines for a skit, Sara Dzikiewicz entertains the Drama Club.

Yosemin Washington, secretary of the Freshman Class is also involved in many after school activities. Not only is she a Freshman Cheerleader, but she has also taken ballet, tap, and jazz lessons for four years at the Hunting Towers Academy of Dance. Yosemin says: "I really enjoy high school and the other classmates have a good attitude toward the young Fresh."

Nancy Blair has many other activities besides being Freshman Class treasurer. She is also interested in photography and she takes private voice lessons one day a week after school.

Rough bein' a freshman

"I hate being a freshman." This is the most widely used comment one will hear from the first year high school students. The ones who look down on freshmen the most are probably the sophomores. They are so happy not to be freshmen anymore they'll do anything to make freshmen miserable.

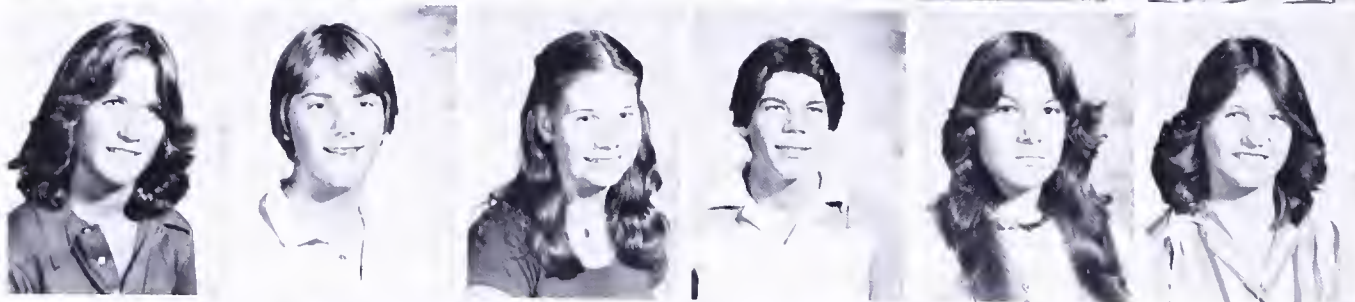

The juniors are right in the middle. They are pleased to be upperclassmen and all they are concerned about is keeping the underclassmen in their place. Seniors don't even acknowledge the presence of freshmen. So they'll just have to tolerate it until next year.

Stars in my eyes

Among the many talented people in Fort Hunt one who stands out as an up- and- coming actress is Karen Bradford. A freshman this year, Karen is involved with the Little Theater of Alexandria. She has been involved in many plays, her most recent one "Hall of Lucifer." Karen has been acting since she was 5. She got her start when she was hanging around a practice of her sister's play "Something's Afoot." She must have shown some talent there because they asked her to join the company playing the part of a pigmy.

Karen also enjoys playing the piano and collecting doll house miniatures. She is presently taking chorus so she can improve her voice because she would like to take part in musicals. She would like to attend the College of Performing Arts and go on to become a professional actress.

Growing up

The first year of high school for most kids is a very big step. It's the time in most kids' lives when they go from being a child to the big, sophisticated world of high school. In Stephen Foster kids learned to obey rules under the dictatorship of Principal, Ms. Dot Duncan. When kids come to Fort Hunt, they become aware of the freedom involved with high school life.

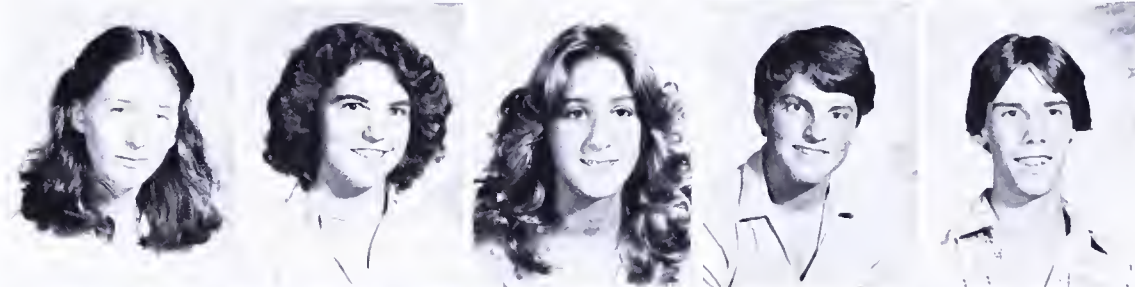

When on eighth grader in Foster, one feels at the top of the totem pole. Now they are the bottom. As they slowly go through the years to reach the top again, they learn more about themselves and the people around them.

Military brats

The Fort Hunt area is made up mostly of military families. And being in the military means that you travel from place to place all over the world. Virginia Hazen belongs to one of these families. She has been to Austria, Switzerland, and most recently Germany. In Germany she lived in Stuttgart, Karlsruhe, and Mainz. Some of the benefits that you get by living in Germany are that you can take field trips to France or go to the beach in Italy.

"Out of all the schools I've been to, Fort Hunt has got to be the best," Virginia says. She belongs to the German Club, skis, ice skates, plays baseball and piano. And in her spare time she collects charms for her charm bracelet and postcards.

Freshman beats inflation

One of the big problems facing kids in high school is their lack of money. For the unfortunate ones under 16 a source of income is pretty hard to come by. Freshman Tina Mayolo has found a solution to her problem. "It's a hobby that makes money," claims Tina.

She has her own business painting footstools which her father builds in his workshop. She paints flowers and other designs on the stools in only two hours time and makes a profit of about $15. In addition to her money making hobby she enjoys skiing and playing the piano. Tina has truly found a way to get by the inflation crunch.

A step ahead of Frosh

With a great deal of spirit and enthusiasm the Class of 83 accomplished great feats this year. Starting the year out right, the sophomores captured first place in the float competition during Homecoming festivities. President John Redd, Vice President Danny Bean, Secretary Margie MacDonald, and Treasurer Steve Rosenberg and many exuberant sophomores raised money for their class funds through such activities as candy sales. In their first two years at Fort Hunt the Class of 83 has made a major contribution to the school. They should continue to enhance their reputation in the next two years.

Run for health

With superior natural ability and good coaching, Bob Murray has become a major threat in Northern Virginia Boys Track. In his first year Murray surprised all coaches and experts in the area by running a four and a half minute mile. As a sophomore in his first year competing in Cross Country, Bobby led the boys team to the coveted District Title, personally finishing 2nd.

Bob runs about seventy five miles per week to prepare for his meets. He expressed his feelings on his hard work and dedication. "I'm hoping to get a full scholarship to a major university for my track efforts."

Realizing abilities

It takes a great deal of determination and ability to play on the Varsity Football Team especially if you happen to be the youngest member. These factors are just what corner back Dan Haan possesses. After football cuts in late August, it was revealed that he was the only sophomore on the varsity squad. This situation added slight pressure on Haan both in football and with his classmates.

Dan mentioned "My friends always joke around about it and the other guys (players) tease me some, but only off of the field." Dan started in five games this year and feels that Groveron was his best game because of his interception. Dan Haan, otherwise known as #41, plans on playing in college and will be a valuable member of Fort Hunt's squad for the next two years.

Dan Haan finds Jack Hall a great place to socialize and keep his eye on a few prospective dates.

Forming foundations

Playing sports seems to come easy to Eric Wood. In his first year at Fort Hunt Eric was a standout on the Freshman Football Team and in the fall he started for the Varsity Soccer Team. Eric was the only freshman in the Metropolitan area to make an All-District Team.

This year Wood started for the JV Football Team until he was brought up to varsity for kicking duties. Eric said that "I was a little nervous about playing on varsity level at such a young age, but once things got started everything went all right."

Loosening up before the game, Eric Wood practices his kicking.

Planning ahead

Since he was five years old, sophomore Ralph Howard has been riding horses. Over the years he has been a champion in many local horse shows in the jumping class. Since that time he has moved up to a rougher competition, dressage. In this event Ralph says you are "trying to get yourself in harmony with the horse to make it look like you aren't doing anything while executing difficult maneuvers." This requires him to ride 7 days a week on "Gray Wolf," his own horse.

He continues to ride because of the enjoyment and the sport is "challenging." His goal, "a dream," is to ride in the Olympics. Even if this dream isn't fulfilled, Ralph plans to ride for the rest of his life, continuing to face the challenge of perfection.

Before his daily ride, Ralph Howard brushes "Gray Wolf" down.

Aim for the top

Amy Dixon is a sophomore full of exhilarating energy. Besides being a junior varsity cheerleader, she also has been concentrating on dance. She has been taking ballet for nine years with the Mount Vernon Dance Academy. She has performed in the Youth Fairfax Recital and plans to be in performances soon.

"My main goal is to make ballet a full time career and try to get in a ballet company." Amy practices four hours a week in the summer and one to two hours during the fall.

Ballet is a career which requires many long hours of practices. A truly dedicated person can make their dreams come true if they're willing to spend long periods of time working hard. Amy has devoted her time to doing just that.

Amy Dixon demonstrates her flexibility.

Finally upper but still under

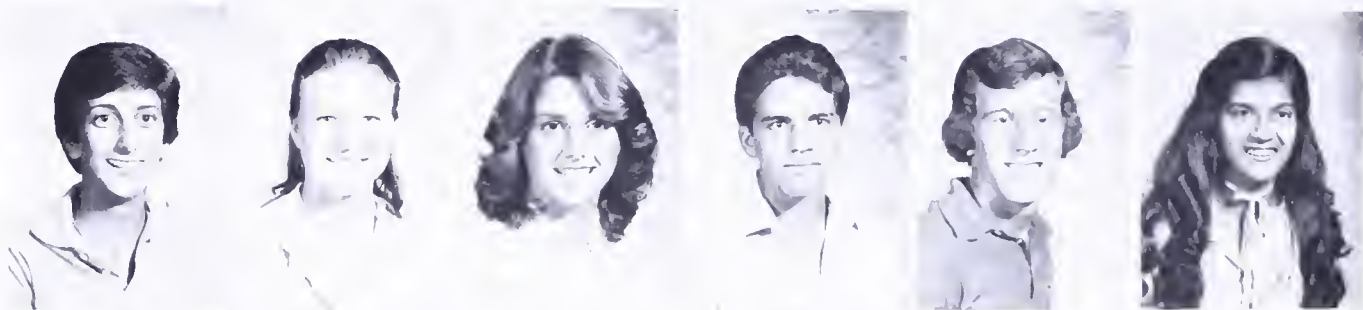

"Juniors at last!" was a cry often heard during the first few days of school this year. With this semi-prestigious title came many responsibilities and problems. Although the class of '82 could ridicule and chastise the lowly Freshmen and Sophomores, it had to watch out for the Seniors.

During the course of the year there was a continuous onslaught of work. There were the ever-dreaded county papers, the expository writings, the research papers, and the unforgettable PSAT's. It was a tough year, but the class of '82 stood up to the challenges and are destined to progress to become the superior being, the Senior, when the present seniors vacate that position.

Fast and rough, with the ever present fear of injury, ice hockey is a sport only for these seeking excitement. "I like hockey because it's nonstop, fast, with a lot of action and definite contact," said Peter Samuelson with the agreement of Mike Cachine, both of whom play for the Mount Vernon Minute-men.

"I think it's a great sport, but we have a definite disadvantage because we don't live in Canada," added Greg Powers of the Fairfax Flyers. All three believe that their experience at the game will help them get into college, but as Mike said, "It would be better and easier if we had school teams like in Maryland."

After scoring in the game, Greg Powers, Mike Cachine, and Peter Samuelson try scoring in the halls.

Federal rides on

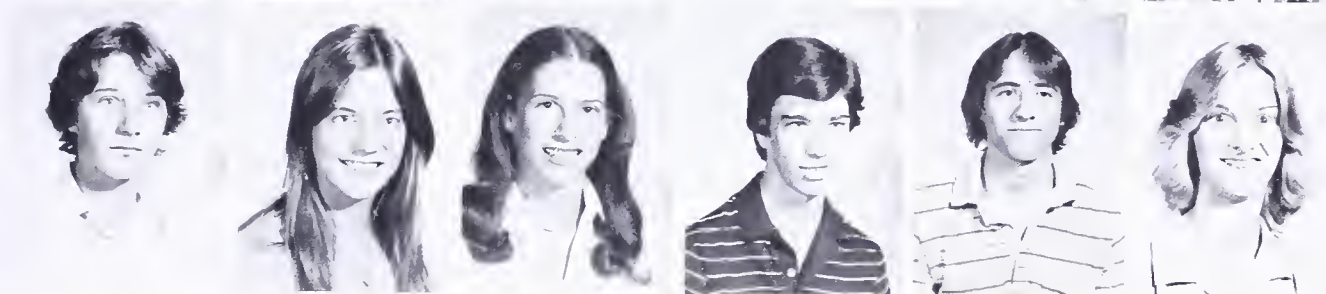

Riding has become a way of life for Damara Bolre. "I became interested in riding in the seventh grade, because I love the outdoors and animals, especially horses." This past year Damara has been taking lessons, competing in various horse shows, and has become a member of the Intercollegiate Riding Team.

As of now, Damara's future plans and goals have been geared towards her interest in horses. She hopes to attend Averett College and major in equestrian science, so that one day she may own her own stable and riding academy. Her biggest dream seems to be that of making the Olympic Equestrian Team of 1988. To continue riding Damara has had to maintain at least a B average to earn the privilege.

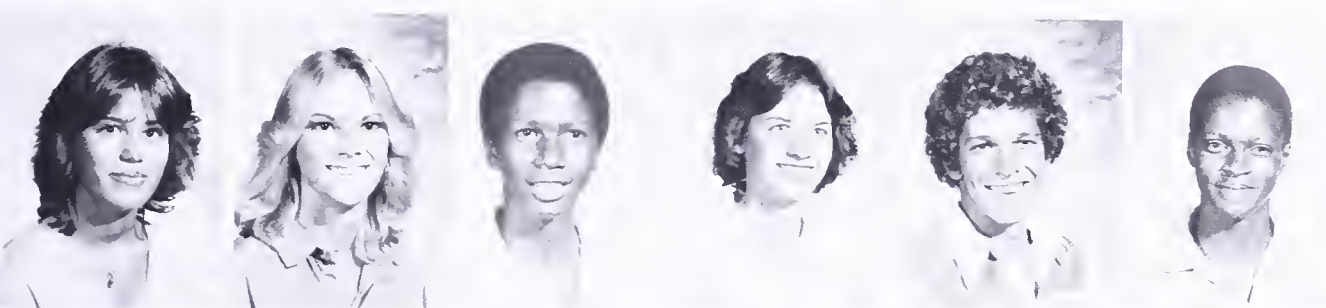

Donning her riding apparel, Damara Bolre anticipates another first place ribbon.

Foreigner finds Fort friendly

Foreign exchange student Angela Hansen from Germany has been experiencing many changes here from her native country. "Every day I can see new things that are different from Germany." She explains that in Germany every kind of activity and sport is not involved with the school. In the classroom the students stay in one room, and the teachers walk from room to room. There are also no counselors in her school.

Despite Angela's change from Germany to the United States, she says she likes the American people and the atmosphere of the country. She claims life here is more casual, there is plenty of freedom, and she loves the big houses and cars. She doesn't gain any credit in Germany for attending school at the Fort, but she wanted to see and learn about the American way of life.

Telling of her new American experiences, Angela Hansen engages in cultural exchange.

General of the field

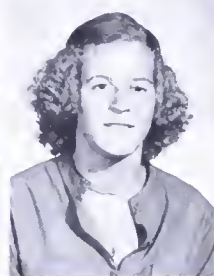

Football was by far Fort Hunt's biggest fall attraction, and varsity quarterback Robby Hensley was right in there on the action. When he was not actually playing football, Robby could be found preparing himself, both physically and mentally, to play. According to Hensley, people don't realize the tremendous amount of preparation football takes, on and off season. Practicing five days a week, at least two hours per day, Robby found little free time.

Although he plans for a football scholarship, academics do come before football in Hensley's opinion. Knowing well that a football scholarship requires good grades, too, Robby works hard to maintain a high B average. However, as he puts it, "I want football to work for me. I've worked so hard for football."

Intent on winning the game, quarterback Robby Hensley listens carefully to Coach King's advice.

One of the more dedicated groups in the Fort is the Marching band. A talented member of the band is Neil Suffa. He is one of Fort Hunt's premier trumpeter players. To be one of the best he had to practice twenty hours a week. When he was asked why he practiced so many hours, he replied that he "liked trying to be the best" in what he does.

Neil got his start on the trumpet six and a half years ago. Since that time he has been playing at churches and in community bands. The trumpet is a hobby that he will probably keep for the rest of his life. He feels it is "a learning experience."

In preparation for a weekend's band competition, Neil Suffa perfects his performance.

FRESHMEN

New surroundings, faces, situations and attitudes confront the Freshman as he takes his first step into Fort Hunt High School. The new student feels unaccustomed to his surroundings and must begin a process of reorientation. He has to, in a sense, start out all over again.

"I felt pretty uncomfortable at first," says Jarvis Boykin. "You're the smallest guy around and you don't know anyone except people your own age."

As the year moves along, the Freshman begins to become a part of the "body" that is known as Fort Hunt. "Now that the year's half over," comments Brian Judd, "I feel like I'm actually a part of this school, a feeling I didn't have before."

Upon completion of his first year the Freshman has accomplished his first step in becoming a Federal. He feels like he "belongs."

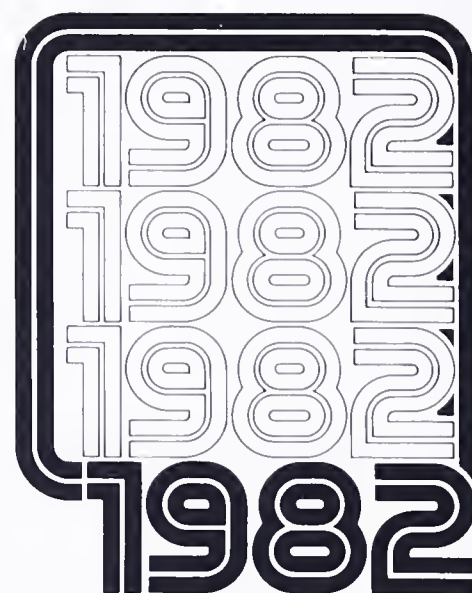

SOPHOMORES

The Sophomore enters his second year of high school with ease. He knows what to expect and looks forward to the school year, realizing that he has outgrown his "Freshman" label. No longer must he waste time on becoming familiar with his situation.

Instead, the sophomore begins to place emphasis on building friendships and trying to create a social "niche" into which he can fit.

"We got to see each other a lot more this year," says Harriet Holt. "Cars, parties, and extra curricular activities made it possible for us to get to know each other better. I guess you sort of try to find out where you belong or fit in with your friends."

The student discovers a deeper meaning of what it means to be part of a group.

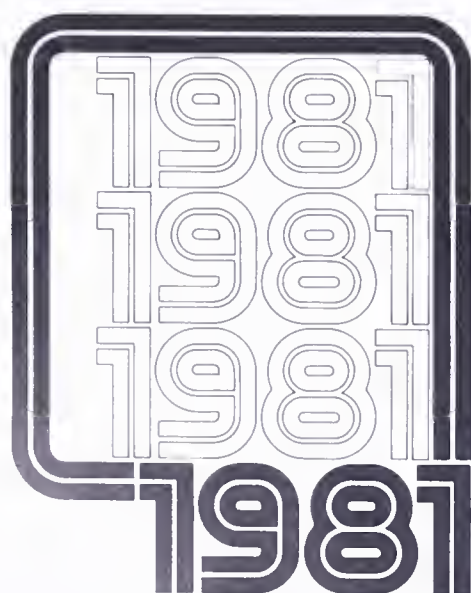

JUNIORS

By the time a student becomes a Junior, his school life is in full swing. He knows where he stands among his peers and feels secure as he is now a genuine upper classman.

Along with greater involvement within a group, the Junior also had to begin to think more seriously about himself as an individual. Decisions pertaining to his future loomed on the horizon.

"My graduation was coming up on me faster than I realized," says John Wildman. "I had to begin thinking seriously about myself and what I wanted to do with my life."

The emphasis was beginning to shift away from the group and towards the individual. This made the student's junior year an important period for growth.

SENIORS

"I just couldn't believe that I was a senior," shouts Sally Shoaf. Many shared her opinion on the matter. That last year of high school was finally here and the future was closer than ever.

Some looked forward to graduation and their future, but others had mixed emotions. "Sure I want to graduate," says Melanie Phares! "I'm just not sure I want to leave all of my friends behind. It's kind of like breaking up a family."

While relishing his last year with his friends, the Senior had to concentrate on himself, realizing decisions had to be made concerning tomorrow.

"I had to think about myself and what I wanted," remarks Grace Austin. "Others could help me but only I could make the final decisions."

For a Senior, responsibility was now a reality.

Senior Prom, car washes and other activities were just a few areas of major interest for 1981's Senior Class officers. This year's administration consisted of President Bob Bastredo, 1st Vice President Chris Bauer, 2nd Vice President Mary Taylor, Secretary Karen Coughlin and Treasurer Niki Kyriacou.

"Sure we wanted to raise money for things like the Prom," says President Bob Bastredo. "But our basic goal was to bring our class together. If there's one basic thing that I've seen in this school since I was a freshman, it's been how we've all become closer regardless of the social group that each of us is in."

This year's officers placed an emphasis on getting the class involved in the government. "An administration's success is based on its ability to get others involved," voices Vice President Chris Bauer. "If nobody wants to do anything, there's not much five people can get done by themselves."

At Fort Hunt, music is not only for enjoyment but a way of life. For Kerry Williams, it is even more a part of her life. She enthusiastically contributes her time and efforts to the Fort Hunt Madrigals.

Kerry's continuing efforts in music have brought her a chance for stardom. On February 10, 1981 she is going to make a demo tape and cut an album of twelve songs. Kerry wrote ten of the songs with the others written by her close friend Sheila Hargis. She classifies her music as being "contemporary Christian music."

Some day we may all be listening to Kerry's music on the radio, but until then we will only take to heart the words of her songs.

Up in arms over authority

In the past, to be different was considered an asset, but recently the trend has been to blend in with the crowd. Marc Robinson hardly blends in; his whole mode of thinking differs greatly from the conventional. When asked about his hobbies, Marc replied, "I waste much of my time on world affairs, war games, drawing, politics, philosophy, psychology, karate, history, and studying members of the opposite sex."

With so many different hobbies, Marc has little time for sleep. After high school, he plans to spend some time "enriching his mind" and then go on to law school. From there, he would like to get into politics and world affairs in an effort to better the country. In reference to life at Fort Hunt, Marc feels that a quote from Joseph Conrad's HEART OF DARKNESS sums it up well. "The horror, the horror, the horror!" Part of this horror is felt by all of us; it isn't easy.

Finally, Marc leaves us with this: "By the way, if you're paying attention-DON'T! Just grasp what's real."

This sketch is an example of Geoff's creative talents depicting the Grim Reaper, an element of the supernatural.

Geoff Acchione, a person very involved in art, loves to draw. When he draws, he lets his creative imagination go. He feels that he contributed his integrity and originality to the school by his drawings. He added his touch to the Junior class hall with a picture of Led Zeppelin.

After school he wants to attend Mary Washington College and go into the field. Geoff said what he will remember most about Farr Hunt are Mr. Combs and Frau Mulver, and cheap food. Geoff hopes to continue drawing in his future.

Few have had the experience of feeling the wind rushing past them as they race between trees and go through an obstacle course of falling bikes and power sliding everywhere. One of these people is Jeff Kindred. For some years he raced in Scholastic and MAMA Moto-Cross Racing Associations. Jeff is a true connoisseur of Harley Davidsons and an owner of a '71 Norton 750 Commando stroked out to 900. For racing equipment, he has an IT 175 and YZ 125, Yamahas.

Jeff's interests are definitely not restricted to motorcycles. He is a true "manic mechanic." At present, Jeff's time is devoted to restoring his '67 Ford Fairlane. Jeff improves his mechanical skills as a night shift mechanic at Co-op gas station. At just a glance the first thing one would notice is his Tony Lamas, his Western wear shirts, and black leather jacket.

Being such a devoted Confederate, Jeff also enjoys southern rock and bluegrass. Jeff still stands on firm ground saying, "The South will rise again!"

Students play toward future

Playing the hard rock of the late 60's "Window Pane" sticks with the basics of rock'n'roll. "Anything put out after 1975 is trash and we don't listen to it-let alone play it," Chris Nottingham stated. The music most often played is the Who, Steppenwolf, Jimi Hendrix, and Robin Trower. Rather than do the same renditions of this material, they try to add a unique sound to the song.

The group members, drummer Hervey Keotar, lead guitarist Eric Schlam, and bassist Chris Nottingham, have been playing together for 2 years. Much of that time is spent practicing in Eric's basement, working on their sound. They have performed at parties and at local motels. At one of these parties, Eric, in a Pete Townsend type act, destroyed his guitar.

With similar actions and a continually improving sound, "Window Pane" may reach their goal, a professional career in music.

Be it a debate, classroom conversation mock war or an adventure in someone's world, Joe Dzikiewicz is always happy to give his opinion. He is well known in this school for the most unconventional reasons. Every senior has the memory of Joe's campaign for the presidency of the Senior Class, his unorthodoxed outbursts at class meetings and his always being there with an explanation. His presence made some laugh and others wonder.

"I provide a breath of fresh air" admits Joe when asked what he thinks of his contributions. Joe is often ridiculed for being different, but it doesn't seem to bother him. He looks on those who don't understand with pity.

In the future, Joe predicts that the one thing he will remember most is "a small group of close friends, whom I have met here." In general Joe enjoys using his mind and imagination, something that seems to be becoming more and more obsolete. The more conventional the world becomes, the more alienated people like Joe get.

Joe leaves Fort Hunt with this: "You have taken me much too seriously; I played a game with you and I won."

An unexpected, but welcome member to the Senior Class this year is Marilyn Mueller. Marilyn decided to graduate in what would have been her junior year in order to pursue a possible career in dancing. "I switched over from gymnastics in about the seventh grade," comments Marilyn. "In my sophomore year people who knew what they were talking about started saying that I was very good."

Although seemingly a glamorous undertaking, dancing has forced Marilyn to weather many sacrifices. "Practically all my time goes into dancing and when I'm not doing that, I'm either working or going to school. I have no real social life. Sometimes I wonder if it's worth it."

"I hope things work out for the best!" exclaims Marilyn. Whatever happens for her, she will have certainly earned it.

Most of the time when someone asks where the parties are going to be on the weekend, they want to go there and socialize, relax, and generally get away from it all. This is not true for David Quant. One of the major reasons he goes to parties is to sift through the trashbags and raid the refrigerator to find empty and/or full beer cans for his collection.

Dave got his start in beer can collecting in seventh grade and has been doing it ever since. According to his count, David has 1,202 cans which are worth $1,000 in value. He has cans from all over the world, but he specializes in twelve ounce cans. His best ones are an Old German cone top and an Old Georgetown.

David goes to many can conventions where he trades his doubles for new cans. Most of the cans he "either found or traded." Those that he did buy, he had his brother take "care of the emptying" for him.

So, next Saturday night, if you need to get rid of those beer cans littered all over the back seat before you get home don't just dump them out the windows, cruise by Quant's house and give them to him.

Success is truly a great point in anybody's life. Senior Susan Heil has achieved this status. While maintaining a 4.0 grade average, Susan has managed, in this school year alone, to be the secretary of her youth group, president of the French Honor Society, vice-president of Junior Civilians, co-captain of the English Team, librarian of the orchestra, a member of National Honor Society, and a National Merit Semi-finalist. Taking private lessons, she also plays in the first violin section of Fort Hunt's orchestra, as well as playing the guitar in her free time she has.

Susan seems to enjoy her busy schedule. "The thing I like best about the things that I do is the people that I'm involved with. When something we've planned works out well it gives everyone a good feeling."

Some people would call her a brain or a bookworm, but Susan remains unaffected. "I want to do as well as possible, so I just have to try my best. My friends respect me for who I am and that's all that matters!"

One of the track team's most visible personalities is Robin Roughon. As an athlete she's contributed more to the team than just points on the board or victories at meets. "Robin added an important dimension to the team," says girls track coach Andy Tinsinger. "Although she wasn't as successful in her later years, she provided a good example for the rest of the team by her hard work and dedication."

As a student at Mount Vernon, Robin went undefeated her freshman year. From there, things seemed to go downhill. "I really didn't think about it when I won all the time," comments Robin. "I was ahead of all the other girls in training techniques and my competition those first years was not as good as it is now."

People say that my father (her trainer in past years) worked me too hard and I burned myself out. Really the competition got much better and I had some injuries that slowed me down, but other than that, I'd say the competition just caught up with me.

Discouraged as she was, Robin still thinks of her career in track as a success. "I enjoyed the friends I made during track and participating in a common cause with others. Just knowing that I contributed to the team gave me a good feeling."

This seems to be Robin's basic philosophy and it portrays the person she is. Some would call her an anti-hero. Not a big star, but still having a large impact on others by just being herself.

Every girl dreams about being in a beauty contest. Tracy Green, a senior, had a chance to live this dream. Tracy compered in the Junior Miss Pageant with girls from 3 districts: Alexandria and Arlington, McLean and Fairfax, and Springfield and Annandale all in the Northern Virginia area. The girls were judged on poise, appearance, creative arts, talent, and academic level.

Each girl wanted to score high in each area so they practiced very hard. The girls met from 6 to 11 every night for 2 weeks before the competition on September 27 to improve their "style." Tracy played the music from Godspell for her talent portion.

Although Tracy did not win she said, "I made a lot of friends, that's what really counts. All the girls were really nice and we helped each other during the tryouts." It was a once in a lifetime experience for Tracy and she feels any girl with the qualifications should think about competing in the pageant.

This freshmen year of 1980-81 has been one to remember. In appreciation we would like to thank all of the upperclassmen and faculty members who helped us through our first year of high school. We would also like to wish the best of luck and success to the graduating class of 1981. The class of '84 says:

Thanks again for a terrific year.

The 1981 Fortress staff would like to thank the student body of Fort Hunt High School for their help in producing this year's book.

We would also like to thank the patrons who are listed on these advertising pages for their generous support of our publication.

1981 LIVES!

1981 was an eventful year. Not in the sense that anything exceptionally exciting happened around here, for everyone knows that nothing happens around here. When things got boring, we came to rely more on each other.

Friendships grew and we came to know ourselves as well as others better. That 3-kegger or that whaling night out on the town would mean nothing without those good friends.

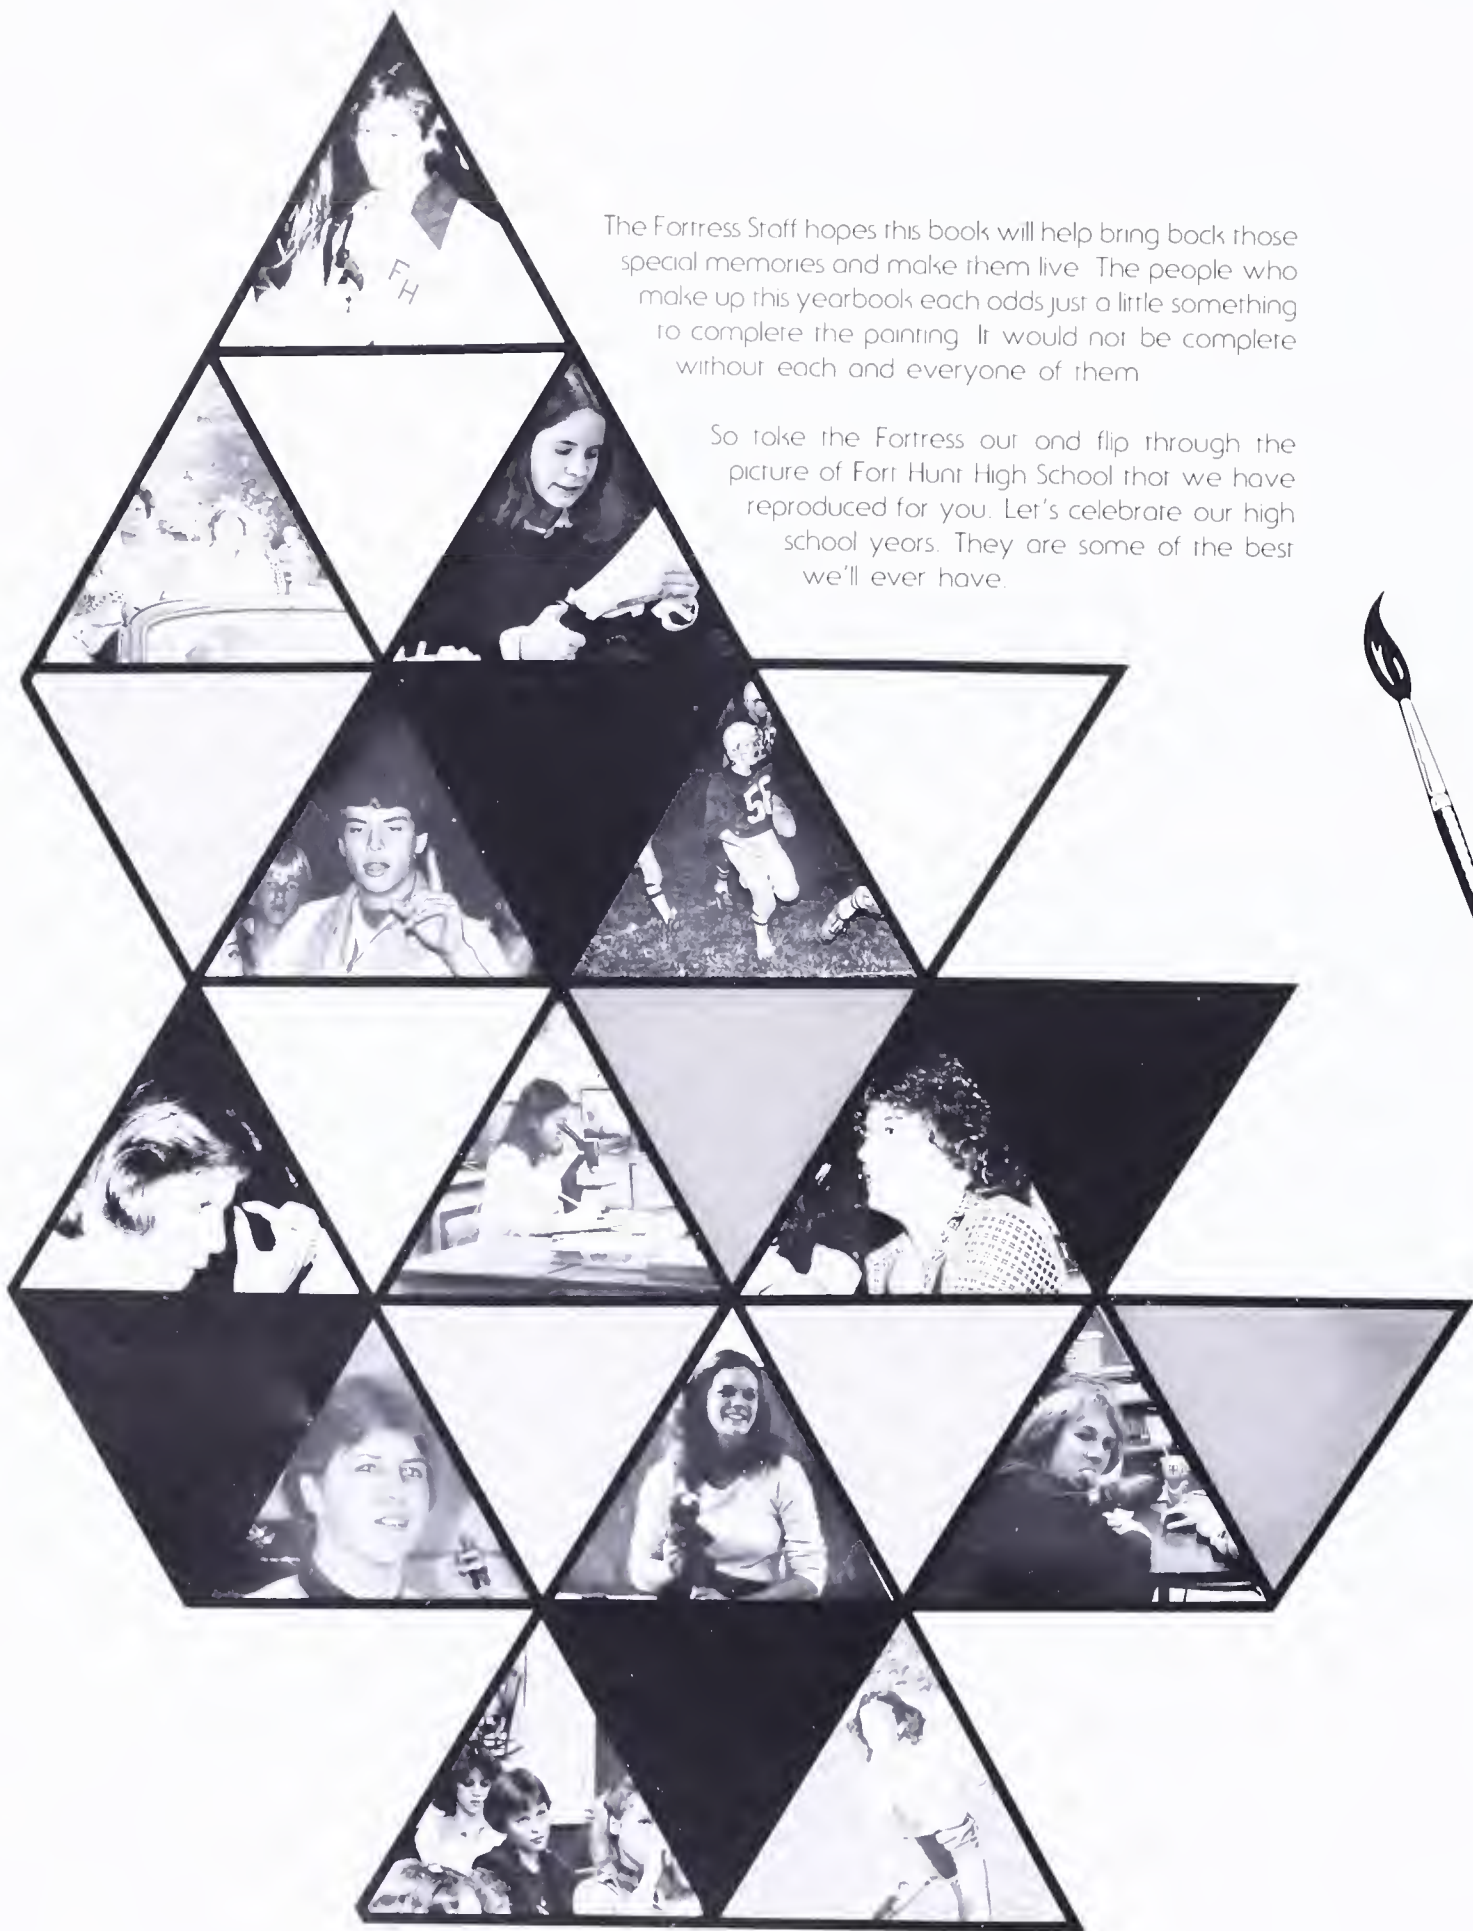

In the future it will be the smaller, seemingly less important things that are remembered like the personality of someone or an unforgettable facial expression.

Volume 18 of the Fortress is printed by Josten's American Yearbook Company, State College, Pennsylvania. Typography: Serif Gothic #35, 8 pt. captions, 10 pt. body copy, 18 pt. subheadlines, 24 pt. headlines-special headlines, Forman. Paper: 80 lb glossy finish #191, size 9x12. Binding Smythe Sewn, rounded and backed. Cover: Design-Becky Smith Editionline 4 color lithograph with white background #534.

The Fortress Staff hopes this book will help bring back those special memories and make them live. The people who make up this yearbook each adds just a little something to complete the painting. It would not be complete without each and everyone of them.

So take the Fortress out and flip through the picture of Fort Hunt High School that we have reproduced for you. Let's celebrate our high school years. They are some of the best we'll ever have.
